Pumps, Waste, Signs And Rats Discussed by Board of Public Works

TERA to Erect Pumping Station at Lincoln Street and Clifton Avenue for New Clifton Avenue Sewer—Some Merchants Not Cooperating With Ash Collectors—Too Many Unofficial No Parking Signs—Other Matters.

Plans for the new pumping station to be erected by the local TERA as a part of the new Clifton avenue sewer system were filed with the board of public works on Friday evening which also discussed the matter of cooperation of uptown merchants with the board in the collection of ashes and waste materials from the uptown business section; the question of making Foxhall avenue, between Hasbrouck avenue and Broadway, a one-way street to eliminate the traffic signals on Broadway at Foxhall avenue; and the question of eliminating the large number of unofficial "no parking" signs erected on many of the streets.

Owing to the grades that exist in the Clifton avenue section of the city, the local TERA has found it necessary to plan to erect a pumping station to pump the sewerage from that area into the existing combined sewer on East Chester street. This station is to be a one-story brick building located on the corner of Lincoln street and Clifton avenue. It will be equipped with two automatic gasoline motor pumps. The building will be 17 by 20 feet.

A delegation from the PNT Club of the Fourth Ward waited on the board and wanted to be given permission to use the baseball diamond in Hasbrouck Park on Sundays. It developed that the club had been given permission earlier in the season, but, according to informationo given the board, recently trouble had developed and the ball team had disbanded, many of the players being taken over by Jack Clair in organizing the team known as the Mayflowers. The park committee had granted the Mayflowers permission to use the diamond on the schedule that had been granted the PNT Club. Members of that club claimed Friday evening that the club had not disbanded its team and was ready to play and had a game booked for Sunday. The Mayflowers also have a game booked. After some discussion the board decided to allow both teams to use the diamond on Sunday, one team playing at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the other team to have the field as soon as the first game was finished.

It is hardly likely that what are known as cat eyes will be installed on the crossing gates of the West Shore railroad in this city. The railroad representatives notified the board that there was no provision in the safety code that required it, and until it was inserted in the safety code the railroad did not think it should be asked to place the cat eyes in the gates. The matter was filed.

The Italian-American Club Band was granted permission to hold a block party on Abruyn street on June 29.

"No Parking" Signs.

Pennington & Johnston sent in a communication that they had opened an antique shop in the former Schnitzler fish market on Main street, and asked to have two "no parking" signs placed in front of the building so that customers would be able to drive up to the curb in front of the building.

The request for no parking signs to be installed in front of Holy Cross Church on Pine Grove avenue was also received and read.

The communication led Commissioner Roach to observe that in his opinion there were now too many unofficial no parking signs in the streets and that a motorist should be given a chance also in finding a place to park his car without having to see a sign stuck up everywhere. No action was taken on his suggestion that a survey be made of the city and unnecessary signs ordered taken down.

"Block Sidewalk"

It was also brought out during the meeting that the Kingston Scrap Iron & Metal Company of lower Hasbrouck avenue was blocking the sidewalk on that street with junk, and was also using part of Maple street and Murray street. After some discussion the secretary was notified to write the company that unless the obstructions were removed at once that legal steps would be taken by the board to compel them to do so.

"A One-way Street"

Commissioner Roach said that he would like to offer as a suggestion that the board consider making Foxhall avenue, from Hasbrouck avenue to Broadway, a one-way street. By doing that it would be possible to eliminate the traffic lights on Broadway at Foxhall avenue. Patients in the Kingston Hospital were greatly annoyed, it was stated, by the noise made in shifting gears by cars forced to halt when the signal turned "red."

No action was taken that evening but the matter will be given consideration by the board.

Failed to Cooperate

Mayor Heiselman stated that in company with Superintendent James G. Norton he had visited the uptown business district the night previous to the ash collections the following day and he was amazed to find how some of the merchants neglected to cooperate with the board. He said that waste matter was put out on the sidewalk in such a manner that if he was superintendent he would refuse to take it up. He said that they had taken the matter up with mer-

City Bond Issues Sold Friday At Lowest Interest Rate On Record

$200,000 Bond Issue Bid in by Halsey, Stuart & Company at Interest Rate of $2.70 a Hundred and Premium of $540—Lively Bidding Between Three Bond Houses Reflected Credit on City's Financial Status.

Spirited bidding by three large New York city bond houses marked the public sale of $200,000 in city bonds which were sold to Halsey, Stuart & Company at par with an interest rate of $2.70 a hundred and a premium of 540 at the public sale of the bonds held Friday afternoon by City Treasurer C. Ray Everett at the city hall. The sale opened at 2 o'clock and the bonds were finally knocked down to the successful bidder two hours later.

The proceeds of the bond issue is to be used to liquidate $100,000 in CWA material notes and the balance to carry on TERA activities here until November.

The sale was attended by representatives of the bond houses of George B. Gibbons & Company, Inc., N. H. Harris Company and Halsey, Stuart & Company of New York; Arthur A. Davis of the Kingston Trust Company, James J. O'Connor of the Ulster County Savings Institution, and E. H. Remmert of the National Ulster County Bank.

City Treasurer Everett first offered the bonds in blocks of $20,000 and Mr. Davis of the Kingston Trust Company bid at par with interest rate of 3½ per cent.

The bonds were then offered as an entire issue, and the bidding was by representatives of the New York bond houses. Under the terms of the sale the bonds were to be sold in the manner which would bring the lowest interest rate for the entire issue.

As the interest rate dropped below 3 per cent several recesses were taken in order for the representatives of the bond houses to get in touch by telephone with their New York city office before bidding was resumed.

As the interest rate was gradually forced down by the bidding the contest narrowed between representatives of the Halsey, Stuart house and the Harris Company, and the low bid was finally made by Halsey, Stuart & Company.

The interest rate obtained for the bond issue Friday establishes a record for Kingston and so far as known is the lowest rate of interest ever obtained for an issue of city bonds here.

One of the representatives of the bond houses remarked during one of the many recesses that the low interest rate offered for the bonds reflected credit on the city's financial status.

Adirondack Forests Closed to the Public

Governor Issues Proclamation at the Request of Conservation Officials. Who Termed Situation Very Grave.

Albany, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—The tinder dry forests of New York's Adirondack Mountains, extending over twelve counties, were closed to the public "for recreational and sport use" today as the danger of additional fires increased hourly.

With no general rains in sight for several days and the woods still darkened by a pall of smoke from the two-day fire early this week, Governor Herbert H. Lehman signed the proclamation last night in New York city at the request of conservation department officials who termed the situation "very grave."

Rangers reported that the pall of smoke from the fire which laid waste to 10,000 acres Tuesday and Wednesday hid the forests from tower watchmen, and that if a new fire should start and burn unobserved for an hour "we probably could not put it out."

"The weather report for rising temperatures and low humidity makes bad fire conditions," Secretary John Halpin of the conservation department said.

The proclamation affects the counties of Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Hamilton, Herkimer, Lewis, Oneida, St. Lawrence, Saratoga, Warren and Washington—virtually every wooded area in the Adirondacks.

Permits for camping and starting of fires are automatically cancelled, all camping in tents and open camps is prohibited on both public and private land and hunters and fishermen are banned from entering the woods.

Residents of enclosed camps or dwellings near regularly travelled highways may remain, however, and the roads may be used for legitimate business purposes.

Emaciated Girl Free Of Chicken Pen Prison

San Juan Capistrano, Calif., June 2 (AP).—Terribly emaciated, seven-year-old Mary Ebarkuarry was cared for at Santa Ana Hospital today while authorities launched an inquiry into the asserted imprisonment of the child in a chicken pen by her mother.

Robert Sandon, investigator for the Orange county district attorney's office, said Mrs. Barney Ebarguarry had penned up the child because she believed her daughter had an "evil eye" and was capable of "casting spells" on members of the family, including six other children.

The child was rescued from her prison by Sandon after her plight had been disclosed by Mrs. Thomas Ramos, whose home adjoins the Ebarguarry cottage here.

Wall Street "Patrol" Soon To Be Made A Law

Washington, June 2 (AP).—A "federal policeman with a big, bright badge" was all ready today to go on patrol in Wall street.

That was the way supporters described a provision of the stock market control bill, which passed Congress last night and which President Roosevelt will sign into law.

The provision gives broad investigating power to the new commission which will regulate the exchanges and administer the securities act of 1932. Supporters hope it will deter bad practices.

New York's Milk Supply Shrinking

Commissioner Baldwin Talks With Farmers in Various Parts of State and Says He is Very Much Disturbed.

Albany, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Commissioner of Agriculture Charles H. Baldwin reported today that due to the long drouth New York state's milk production was beginning to decline.

"There is no shortage, but we are over the peak and the milk supply is shrinking," the commissioner said. "Ordinarily the seasonal peak would not be reached for another month.

"We are having July and August weather before the crops have even begun to grow."

The commissioner talked by telephone with farmers in various parts of the state and said he was "very much disturbed."

In some parts of the state the drouth has not attained serious proportions. Extreme eastern New York has had rain recently. Binghamton reported the "drouth in this immediate vicinity is not yet critical."

Farmers in some counties are resorting to emergency methods used in dry western climates. Niagara county farmers prepared to irrigate crops. A truck garden area near Peekin is piped for irrigation, but only a limited water supply was available in wells.

A report to Roy Gillett, state-federal farm statistician, at Albany, was that in the Oswego county muck lands drainage pipes have been purposely stopped up.

A report from Washington was that there was "little hope for immediate federal aid for the drouth-stricken areas of New York state." Administration officials said other parts of the country were much harder hit.

English to Make Token Payment is Report

London, June 2 (AP)—Reliable soutres said today that Great Britian apparently has reached an understanding with President Roosevelt on the war debts question and will make a token payment in June.

The only comment from official quarters, however, was:

"We are studying Mr. Roosevelt's message with much interest."

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, arrived here today from Geneva where he left the world disarmament conference yesterday. He willl spend his week-end at his home in the country in private talks with other cabinet members.

Sir John, in his trip from Switzerland, had opportunity to be fully informed of the content of Roosevelt's message.

It is known that the message occasioned the British government no surprise of any kind and indicated that both Washington and London knew each other's views before Mr. Roosevelt's message was sent to congress.

A formal communication regarding Great Britain's plans for the payment June 15 probably will be sent to Washington next week.

WINNIPEG FARMERS GET MILLION DOLLAR RAIN

Winnipeg, June 2 (AP)—Farmers of western Canada looked out over rain-soaked fields today as moisture-laden clouds broke a 13-day drouth and poured a million-dollar rainfall over sun-baked grain shoots.

The precipitation extended clear across the southern wheat belt from Manitoba to the western Alberta border line.

Speaker Rainey Holds Unprecedented Power In Congress Dispute

Republican Minority Filibuster is Broken But Instigators Were Content—Democratic Reversal is Claimed.

Washington, June 2 (AP).—The speaker's word today carried dictatorial power.

With the Democratic House tightly gagged by its own hand, Speaker Rainey held more authority than any presiding officer since the hectic "czaristic" day of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Republican speaker of a quarter of a century ago.

The small but militant Republican minority's spectacular two-day filibuster was broken, but its instigators apparently were content.

They claimed they had forced the Democrats, who for two decades cried for liberal parliamentary procedure, to reverse themselves and seek autocratic power for protection.

The Senate rested today. It was likewise under a filibuster-breaking agreement calling for passage of the long bandied-about tariff bill late Monday.

After more than two weeks' debate a bi-partisan understanding late yesterday ended a long series of "repeat" speeches by Republican senators.

The House took up the administration communications control bill today under a special rule limiting debate to two hours.

Under the new rules, Speaker Rainey has the authority to let any member bring a bill up for a vote without consideration by committees or debate on the floor.

He can prohibit any amendments. The rule, however, requires a two-thirds majority for passage of a measure.

The speaker plans to exercise his power on the controversial $1,500,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill and other administration measures.

"Dictatorship" was the way Representative Snell of New York, minority leader, described the new procedure, asserting, "they ought to be ashamed of themselves in admitting that with a three-to-one majority they could not function."

BALLOONIST TO CHECK AIR CONDITIONS IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Five young Buffalo men in a borrowed navy balloon took off here today at 6:45 a. m., eastern standard time, on what was expected to be an all day flight to check air conditions in this area. They are members of the Buffalo Balloon Club, which hopes to bring the national balloon races here some time.

The bag was carried northeastward and several hours later was reported over Lake Ontario.

The pilot is George Heineman, an engineer at the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation plant. His observers are Edwin Walton and Bruce Eaton, of the Curtis Aeroplane and Motor Company, Inc., and James Redding and Robert Wolf, of the Consolidated Company.

PICKED OUT COURT HOUSE LAWN TO TAKE HIS NAP

Harry Golding of New York city came to Kingston on Friday and as he felt sleepy picked out the lawn in front of the court house as a choice spot to take a nap. His slumbers, however, were broken by the arrival of Officer Camp, who placed him under arrest on a charge of public intoxication. This morning in police court Judge Culloton suspended the serving of a five day sentence on his promise to leave town. Arnold Michaels, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct in annoying people on the street, was also given a suspended sentence. Philip Klurman of Gloversville, arrested for speeding 47 miles an hour on Albany avenue, forfeited cash bail of $10 by failing to appear in court this morning to answer to the charge.

RUSSELL SAGE FACULTY TO BE GRANTED PENSIONS

Troy, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—A retirement plan to insure economic security to faculty members of Russell Sage College when their teaching days are over has been approved by the board of trustees.

Faculty members may retire any time after reaching the age of 50, under the college rules, while retirement is mandatory at 65.

A special committee of the board of trustees will administer the plan.

New Yorkers Thrill To Navy's Marching Feet in Big Parade

More than 5,000 of U. S. Naval Forces Parade Before 1,000,000 New Yorkers—High Military Naval and Civil Officials Present—Ideal Day.

New York, June 2 (AP).—The Navy moved up Fifth avenue at march step today, cutlasses flashing a salute to [illegible] New Yorkers, who know a parade when they see it.

Over 5,000 men from the United States fleet's warships, in unbroken rank of white, paraded up the avenue from Washington Square to Fifty-ninth street.

Taking the salute of the Navy were Mayor LaGuardia, Admiral David F. Sellers, Major General Dennis E. Nolan, commander of the Second Corps Area of the Army; and the Navy's war-time chief, Josephus Daniels, now ambassador to Mexico.

Gotham's citizens, who might be expected to adopt a blase attitude towards parades, showered the swinging ranks of "gobs" with torn paper and ticker tape, and cheered impartially as division after division tramped by to the music of their ship bands.

As a background to the white-clad sailors and the flash and glitter of bayonets and swords, the board reaches of Fifth avenue and its skyscrapers stretched away in a vista of flags and hazy sunshine.

But the Army and the Marines took the initial bow. Two regiments of the Marine detail with the fleet led the squadron of mounted police.

The band from the aircraft-carrier Lexington led the main Navy contingents past the reviewing stand, followed in turn by the battleship division, the cruiser division and the scouting forces.

Vigorous applause arose from that section of the reviewing stand occupied by the wives of officers. As each individual ship command moved past, it was saluted vociferously by wives and sweethearts. Whether the officers were grey-haired veterans of of the service or smooth-cheeked ensigns just out of Annapolis each received his due from the women who stay home and wait.

Mayor LaGuardia, himself a veteran of the World War in the Army air forces on the Italian front, followed intently the line of march and took every salute.

At Central Park the divisions were broken up.

SEEKING MOTIVES FOR POISON CHEWING GUM PLOT.

Sacramento, Calif., June 2 (AP).—Police groped today for the motive in an apparent plot to wipe out an entire family with poison chewing gum.

Examination of gum left at the home of Mrs. Georgia McKenzie revealed a coating of deadly poison on each stick. The word "sample" had been typewritten on a small brown envelope enclosing each stick.

Mrs. McKenzie found the chewing gum Tuesday night when she returned home from work. Only the fact that she placed it in her purse before other members of the household found it prevented a tragedy, police believed.

Similar "samples" were found at three other houses in the same block, and although they have not been analyzed, authorities believed they were not poisoned.

ITALY WILL FIGHT HER NEXT WAR FOR HERSELF

Rome, June 2 (AP).—Premier Mussolini told 10,000 war volunteers today that Italy will fight her next war for herself alone and not on behalf of any other nations pretending to be her allies.

"Italy's volunteers, if war is necessary, will shed their blood only for Italy," declared Il Duce. "Experience has shown them that it does not pay to help by land and sea the people who pretend to be our allies."

Mussolini was interpreted as referring to France and her World War ally, Serbia, now part of Yugoslavia. France, he has said, did not give Italy the colonial territory promised in the London treaty of 1915 following which Italy entered the war.

HOT AND COLD SPELLS VIE FOR NEW RECORDS

Kansas City, June 2 (AP).—Snow and all-time heat records made the nation's weather map a crazy quilt today.

While snowstorms ushered in the month of June in Montana, Washington and Idaho, Milwaukee experienced the second hottest day in its history—102.2 degrees.

Forest fires broke out in the parched areas of New York, Maine and Wisconsin, while in the southwest scattered rains brought relief from the heat to some communities.

Washington, June 2 (AP).—The position of the treasury May 31 was: Receipts, $11,529,256.75; expenditures, $22,021,521.38; balance, $2,621,712,068.08; customs receipts for last month, $21,641,135.31. Receipts for the fiscal year since July 1 were $2,724,547,276.31; expenditures, $6,371,782,725.80 including $3,581,929,991.24 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $3,647,235,455.49; gold assets, $7,778,883,213.73.

U. S. Birth Rate Is Plunging Downward

Washington, June 2 (AP).—A plunge in the United States' birth rate certain to carry the 1933 figure to a new low, and still dropping was disclosed today by the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

"We did not expect a decrease as rapid as it is," said Dr. Timothy F. Murphy, chief of the bureau, reporting on the plummet-like movement. "A situation thought to have extended over a long period of years has been hastened."

Margaret Sanger, veteran birth control exponent, called the declining birth rate a general boon as well as a triumph for her cause.

"The birth rate can well afford to go down," she said. "A decreased birth rate doesn't mean a population decrease. Fewer babies are born, but with much less infant mortality, there is a better rate of survival."

The drop has been from 25.1 births per 1,000 population in 1915 to 17.4 in 1932.

Truck Overturned On Road to Hurley

Ran Into Billboard When Load Shifted Causing Driver to Lose Control of Machine—Two Riders Get Bruises.

The driver and his assistant on a large truck en route from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, to Albany, had a narrow escape from serious injury and possible death this morning when their machine overturned. The accident occurred on the sharp turn at the entrance to the Beatty farm near the city limits on Hurley avenue. The truck was loaded with heavy rolls of linoleum and as the driver started to make the turn, which is located at the foot of the Sand Hill, one of these heavy linoleum rolls broke the rope with which it was tied in the truck, and rolling to the edge of the truck rack at the same moment that the driver was going around the turn, pulled the machine out of control, and into the ditch. This in turn, the driver explained, threw the car into the large billboard that stands at a dangerous right angle to the road at this point. Here the truck overturned. The top of the cab, in which the truckmen were riding, was badly smashed, but both men were fortunate to escape with but slight bruises and scratches. The truck was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed, enabling the driver to gain some slight control over the machine with the brakes or the accident probably would have been more serious. Although the hour was still early, 6 o'clock, a number of neighbors hearing the crash of the splintering billboard gathered at the scene of the accident. Both truckmen, however, had extricated themselves from the overturned machine before assistance reached them.

Dionne Quintuplets Continue to Thrive

Corbell, Ont., June 2 (AP).—The Dionne quintuplets continued to thrive today, ignorant of all the fuss that's being made about them.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the country physician who is attending the famous five-day-old sisters, said they had a good chance to live "but that doesn't guarantee anything."

If the babies live and are well they'll be at the world's fair, for their father, Ovila Dionne, young French-Canadian farmer, has signed a contract to bring the quintuplets and Mrs. Dionne to Chicago.

The Dionnes are to receive $250 a week and 30 per cent of the gate receipts. In addition, Dionne will get a weekly salary of $100, beginning immediately.

1935 Naval Parley May go to London

Washington, June 2 (AP).—American diplomatic and naval chiefs have placed an unofficial "OK" on proposals to hold the 1935 general naval conference in London.

Robert Worth Bingham, American Ambassador to London, who will carry on the preliminary bi-lateral discussions for the United States, had instructions today to interpose no objections if the British government extends an invitation.

The time and place for the conference will be decided during the preliminary talks, beginning next week between envoys of the five interested sea powers.

Washington, June 2 (AP).—A deficiency supply bill authorizing a potential six billion dollar relief expenditure by President Roosevelt was reported today to the House by its appropriations committee.

In submitting the measure, however, the committee disregarded the chief executive's request for unlimited discretionary power as to allocations of some funds and tied up certain items by mandatory provisions.

In actual cash outlay from the treasury, the bill calls for $1,175,269,000, but it contains provisions that all the unused borrowing power of the Reconstruction Corporation, the unspent PWA funds, savings brought about by the economy act of 1933 and unexpected farm administration relief monies may be transferred to feed and clothe the hungry.

The RFC also is given power to buy obligations issued by cities and states which have received grants from the PWA.

The president requested $1,322,000,000 for relief purposes, but of that $150,000,000 already has been appropriated by congress under the Jones bill making cattle a basic commodity. This sum is to be expended to purchase cattle and dairy products to be turned over to the needy.

In his message to congress, the president asked that no definite legislative restrictions be placed on the relief funds except as he requested.

But the committee, objecting to the method by which Secretary Ickes has administered the $3,300,000,000 public works fund, specified the following items:

That not more than $500,000,000 be expended under the PWA.

That $100,000,000 must be spent for highway construction.

That $65,000,000 must be spent for construction of federal public buildings.

In addition, specific items approved by the President aggregated $96,095,000, of which $82,950,000 is for the federal land banks; $10,000,000 for the Internal Revenue service to enable it to collect liquor taxes, and $3,000,000 for the emergency banking and gold reserve acts.

The report said the funds made available, plus those that may come through the RFC, PWA and other channels under the authority given the President, should be sufficient to maintain the CCC and relief administration until March 31, 1935, and the Tennessee Valley authority until the next fiscal year.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL IS KILLED BY BEGINNER'S ERROR

St. Johnsville, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Miss Vera Hayes, 17, of Snell's Bush, near here, died early today of injuries received when a car which a girl companion was learning to drive, crashed through a barn door and overturned at East Creek late yesterday.

The companion, Frances Gray, also 16, may lose her right arm, crushed beneath the car.

The girls, freshmen at St. Johnsville High School, borrowed the machine of a farm hand to practice driving, saying they would remain in a barn yard. They went on to a highway, however, failed to make a sharp curve at the foot of a hill and crashed through the barn.

3,000 ANGRY PERSONS HOLD RIOT AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, June 2 (AP).—Communistic agitation was blamed today by Chief of Police James E. Davis for a riot in front of a county welfare bureau office in which 3,000 angry persons battled 200 policemen, causing injury of more than 50 persons, one so seriously he may die.

The disturbance broke out when a committee of unemployed representing a union were turned away from the office by plain clothesmen.

Bricklayers Still On Strike

Rochester, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—One hundred bricklayers on the new million dollar state hospital at Mt. Morris were still on strike today after efforts of Col. M. J. Regan of the State Department of Labor failed to bring both sides to an agreement. The workers are demanding $1.25 per hour, an increase of 12 cents.

Senator Desmond Recovering

Newburgh, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Ill a week with influenza, state Senator Thomas C. Desmond of the 27th district was reported making steady recovery at his home here today. His condition is not considered critical, it was said, and, barring complications, the illness is beyond the serious stage.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

No Need for Angel's Wings.

New York—Jails are not so bad when there are so many bars to climb and the matron provides bananas. That is the actively expressed opinion of Alfred Fiorello's monkey. The organ grinder and his pet are locked up for five days because they irked an agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Fiorello refused to remove the monkey's jacket on a hot day.

Husband, Spare That Chair.

New York—Add to judicial findings the decision of Magistrate Davis L. Malbin that an old article treasured by a wife may truly be an antique even though her husband considers it a rickety nothing. The court made its ruling in the shop of Israel Putnam, who claims descent from the Revolutionary War general by that name. A patrolman accused Putnam of selling second-hand furniture without a license. Malbin took a look and said the wares were antiques.

Keep Cool Like Coolies.

Chicago—Declaring men are victims of convention and superstition, the 13 members of the Chicago's Anti-Superstition Society are out to find hot weather comfort. They assert that next month they will wear "sensible" clothes like the Chinese.

They hope to abolish collars, coats and vests; to replace trousers with shorts or air-conditioned pajamas.

Picnic Playmates.

Kansas City — Chigres — "Chiggers" to you—have made a belated appearance at the Swope Park picnic grounds.

"But," adds Walter Lister, park superintendent, "we have plenty of mosquitoes, in case anyone misses the chigres."

A-geeing He Will Go.

Pery, Ark.—Short on horses, Farmer John Ashley broke two steers to the yoke. With a "gee" and a "haw" he uses them in the fields on week days and his farm is considered one of the best cultivated in the county.

On Sundays he drives the steers to church.

"Meanest Thief Is Woman

Oklahoma City—He had trouble pronouncing his words and could scarcely see his listeners, but W. S. Johnson's tale of wrath was sincere. The Konowa resident told police a young city woman had stolen his false teeth and his gold-rimmed spectacles as well as $45.

Can't Fly—Not Much!

Oklahoma City—A year ago Clyde Nuckols was dragged from his wrecked airplane and the doctors told him he never could fly again. Now he is one of two pilots who have the recommendation of the U. S. Weather Bureau for contracts which entail daily observation flights at an altitude of 17,000 feet.

On a Day in June

Newport, Ky.—On the hottest June 1 in the history of Newport, Wilma Hot, 22, of Dayton, decided it was time to change her name. She was married to Howard Evans, 32, also of Dayton.

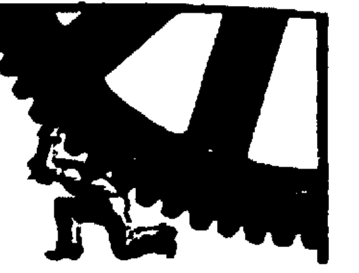
HOW GOES THE BATTLE? MAN vs. MACHINE



This is the eighth in a series of nine articles from as many countries on the status of the machine and its relation to employment.

VIII. JAPAN.

By GLENN BABB

Tokyo (AP)—Under the so-called "tyranny of the machine" the Japanese people rest easily, with little disposition to revolt.

The machine has brought them new life, to many as individuals, to all as a nation. It has made them one of the industrial leaders, one of the great powers, of the twentieth century. So they have welcomed any yoke it may have imposed.

This is due in part to their native docility, born of ages of rigid social regimentation. The coming of the machine age to the ancient East found a people ready trained for its disciplines.

Then, too, Japan has escaped in the main the worst scourge of the machine. Long hours, meager wages, unsanitary working conditions—all these the more than 2,000,000 Japanese factory hands have suffered, perhaps even more deeply than their occidental brothers—but they have escaped the worst of the waves of mass unemployment.

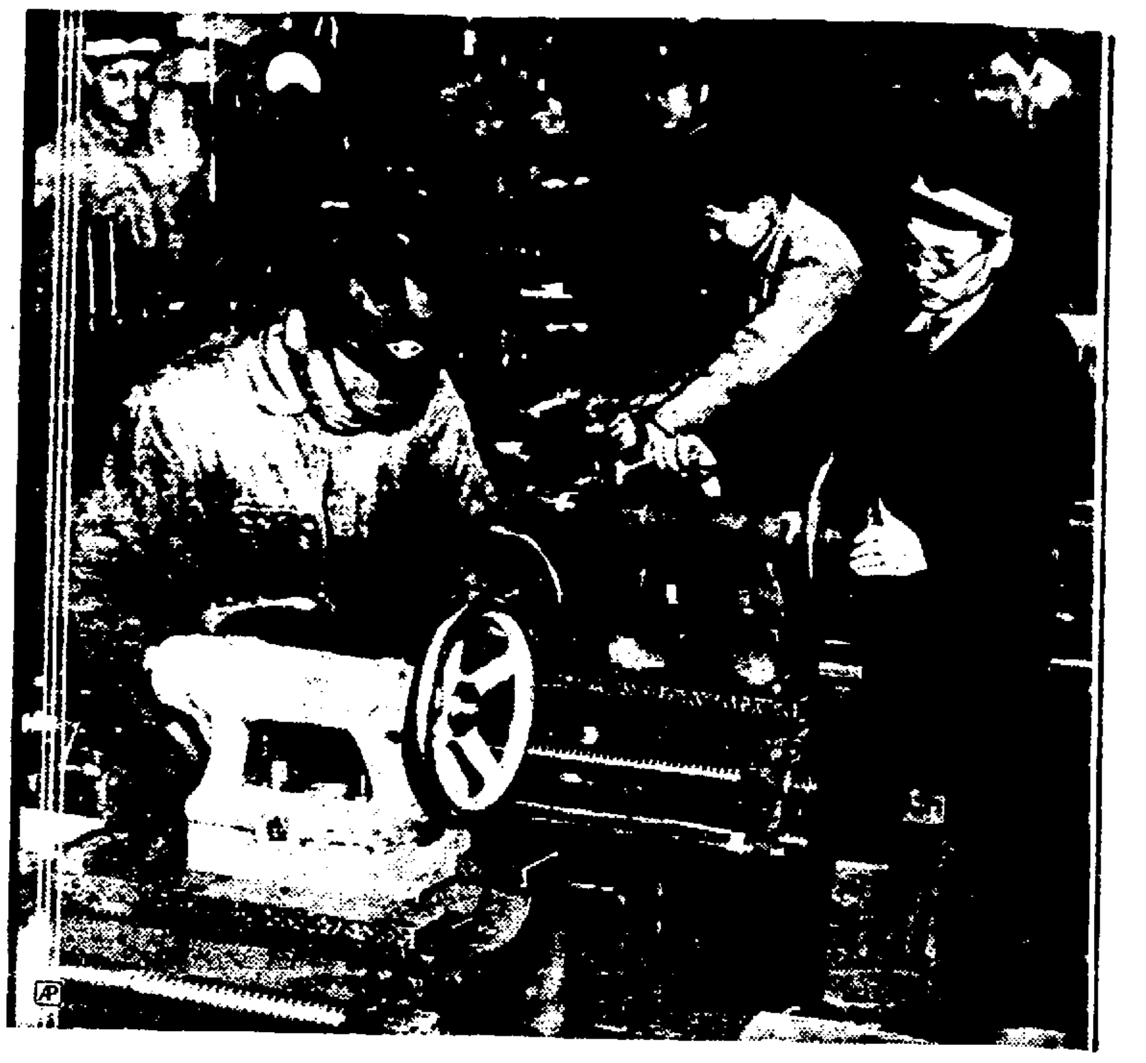
Old and New.

Probably this is because Japan has never submitted entirely to the rule of the machine. Half the nation lives outside its dominion. Industrial Japan keeps pace with the foremost progress of the industrial occident, but rural Japan lives and works much as its forefathers did 2,000 years ago.

The soil is tilled and the harvest sown and reaped by hand. For the Japanese masses the frugal, bleak, hardworked living standards of the farms are still those by which welfare is measured. The extra comforts the machine gives are gratefully received.

Japanese industrial workers for the most part are only a generation or less away from the farm; the ancestral farmstead is still home and the Japanese system obligates the family there to care for the member transplanted to the factory town in his time of need.

Thus, during industrial depression, the factory hand goes back to the paddy fields and lives on the family rice, and the factory suburbs of Tokyo and Osaka are spared the menace of idle, despairing crowds of jobless men and women when the cotton mills and iron works must curtail.



Japan has been making her competition felt in the world markets. Here is a scene in a big casting works at Kawaguchi, near Tokyo.

Industrial Boom.

Today Japanese industry is enjoying a boom, fed by orders for the empire's expanding export trade and the armaments programs of the army and navy. Statistics from the ministry of home affairs placed the number of jobless throughout Japan at the end of 1933 at only 379,000 out of a total of 7,410,000 wage earners, a rate of 5.11 per cent. The rate of unemployment for the factory workers was lowest of all, 3.25 per cent.

Labor organizations assert, however, that at the end of June, 1933, when government statistics showed only 429,000 unemployed and employment rising, there were about 1,500,000 former industrial workers without jobs living meagerly on their ancestral farms.

This ability of rural Japan to care for the castoffs of the machine is not likely to last much longer. The industrialization of the empire is shifting the majority of the population from the country to the cities. Japan's rural population (living in communities of 5,000 or less) in 1898 was 67.16 per cent of the total; in 1913, 50.44 per cent; in 1925, 47.8 per cent; in 1930, only 39 per cent.

More than 4,000,000 Japanese workers depend on the machine. Of these 2,200,000 are in modern industrial plants, with more than half this number in the great textile factories—cotton, artificial silk, silk and wool. Transport in all its phases accounts for another million.

Exporting Machinery.

The machine came to Japan from the west, and for a generation the empire continued to depend on America, Britain and other industrial nations for its machinery. That dependence is passing.

The Japanese machine-making industry, in addition to supplying the greater part of the home demand, has begun to export. Exports of machinery have not yet reached the point of balancing imports, but the adverse balance is diminishing. The Dutch East Indies, British India and Latin America are the best markets for Japan-made machinery.

But women still coal the ships at Nagasaki, carrying baskets of fuel on their shoulders. Men still pull their carts along the rural roads. The farmers, knee-deep in the flooded, foul-smelling paddy-fields, still plant their rice by hand, one plant at a time.

Tomorrow—United States.

Saturday Society Review

Friday, June 8, the newly organized instrumental department of the grammar schools together with the music department of the high school, will close their year of study with a concert in the high school auditorium. A demonstration of the work that has been done in the grammar schools during the past year will be given in the afternoon at [illegible] o'clock. This program will be made up of solos, duets, trios and quartets, while all the classes, combined into a grammar school orchestra, will give a group of numbers. Leonard Stine has been instructing the classes in violin, while Miss Eva [illegible] has had charge of the groups studying the wind instruments. It will certainly be something of a revelation to those who attend this concert to see what strides these grammar school groups have made in the one short year of their organization and study.

That same evening the Girls' Choral Club, the Boys Glee Club and orchestra, all organizations of the high school, numbering about 175 students, will give their annual concert under the direction of Leonard Stine. There will be selections from Beethoven, Palestrina, Purcell, Weber, Handel, Elgar, Mendelssohn, Lemare and Noble Cain. The most ambitious selection on the program will be the presentation of Rubinstein's "Revue Angelique," for contralto solo, orchestra and chorus. This is the same work that was presented with such favorable comments by the critics at the Music Hall of Radio City in New York several weeks ago. Any ticket purchased from either the grammar or high school students, will admit the holder to either or both of these concerts as he desires.

Next week the three Girl Reserve units of the Y. W. C. A. will hold their annual series of mother and daughter banquets at the "Y" hall. The first of these will be Tuesday, June 5, when the grade school club will entertain their mothers. The following day the high school group will entertain and on Thursday the Cheerio Girls Club. The girls are not only helping Mrs. George N. Wood and Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, general chairmen, plan for the suppers, but they are also arranging for a program of entertainment.

This morning the members of the Atharhacton Club motored to the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Otto Fischer at Bushnellville where they are being entertained at a picnic luncheon.

John Brillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brillon of 152 Main street, and a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1932, who is now completing his sophomore year at Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., has been named as one of the members of the Holy Cross orchestra to earn a trip abroad. During the year Mr. Brillon has been leader of the Purple Knights orchestra which he organized last fall and which has been playing during the year at various college functions. On June 15 Mr. Brillon with four other members of his orchestra will sail on the S. S. "Pennland" for a crossing to Havre, France. On the trip abroad they will furnish music aboard the liner. Upon their arrival in France they will be given a two weeks' leave during which time they will be free to visit Paris and different points of interest. On July 11 they will join the S. S. "Olympic", playing for the enjoyment of the passengers on the return voyage. The entire trip is expected to consume a little more than a month. In choosing Mr. Brillon and his "Purple Knights" orchestra the International Mercantile Marine are conferring upon him an honor which has been accorded very few college men in the entire United States.

Everett Fessenden, Jr., who has just completed his Junior year at Yale University returned home today where he will spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fessenden.

Miss Minnie Hillman of the Huntington spent this past week-end at Wildwood Farms at Willow.

John Van Tassell has returned to his home on Washington avenue after graduating from the Albany College of Pharmacy.

Last Sunday Mrs. W. Scott Smith and Miss Agnes Scott Smith motored to Albany where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Schultz. Returning with them was Miss Eleanor Shultz who had been their guest for several days. They were also accompanied by Miss Henrietta M. Myer who spent the day at the home of James S. Mac Pherson where she visited her cousin, Miss Katherine A. Burhans.

This coming Tuesday evening the Business Girls Club of the Y. W. C. A. are holding a party at 8:30 o'clock in honor of Miss Irene Seymour, who will return to her home in England June 9, after having spent the year with Miss Anna Orthmann of Washington avenue. Miss Mary Howard is in charge of the arrangements for this farewell party.

Miss Elizabeth Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Southgate Freeman of Cody, Wyoming, was among the members of the class which was graduated Wednesday of this week from the Misses Masters School at Dobbs Ferry. Miss Freeman and mother left later in the week to motor to Cody.

Joel B. McKenzie of Brooklyn was the Memorial Day and week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. McKenzie at their home, Fernbrook, at Willow.

Teddy Shultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Shultz of Albany has been accorded the honor of being selected by Dr. Rogers, choir master, as a member of the semi-chorus of the choir of St. Peter's Church where he has been singing for the past year and a half.

Thursday, June 14, the D. A. R. will hold a card party in honor of Flag Day. Since the gardens of the chapter house are always at their loveliest at this particular time of the year, it is planned to hold the party on the lawns and porches, if the weather permits. Already a number have called Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and Mrs. George N. Wood for reservations.

The Ulster Garden Club will meet this coming Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. William A. Warren, in Hurley. "Wild Flowers" is the topic that will be discussed.

Plans are nearly completed for the garden fete and fair to be held on the grounds of the Home for the Aged, June 15. The lawn party will take the place of the fair which in other years has been held shortly before Christmas, and the proceeds from the sale of fancy articles, candy, ice cream, the white elephant table and refreshments will be for the benefit of the Home.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Fred P. Luther, newly elected president of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs, entertained the officers of the club and the chairmen of the standing committees at a very delightful tea at her home, 50 Downs street. At this time the group enjoyed an informal discussion of the problems of the Federation cooperating with the managements of the theatres in securing a better type of movies. The discussion was led by Mrs. Luther, who is also chairman of the motion picture committee. During the tea, Mrs. A. Noble Graham presided at the tea urn, while Mrs. George Rice served the guests with iced punch. The table and rooms were decorated with arrangements of flowers from the hostess's own garden. Also, during the afternoon the guests were entertained by a group of songs by Miss Helen Luther, who sang "Do You Know My Garden" by Haydn Wood; "Sing Me to Sleep" by Edmund Green, and "Only a Rose" from the Vagabond King by Rudolph Friml. Miss Luther was accompanied at the piano by Miss Edna Merrihew. Although several of the officers and committee chairmen were unable to attend the tea, the members of this group who will assist Mrs. Luther during the coming year are Mrs. Frederick Snyder, first vice president; Mrs. Florence Cubberly, second vice president; Mrs. William Kemble, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, recording secretary; Mrs. J. C. Fraser, treasurer; Mrs. Ward Brigham, chairman of lectures; Dr. Mary Gage-Day, of public health; Mrs. Clara Norton Reed, of good government; Miss Lucy Healy, of membership; Mrs. Frank W. Thompson, of child welfare; and Mrs. A. Noble Graham of music; and Mrs. Arthur H. Russell, Mrs. Harry Walker, Mrs. George Rice, Miss Elsie Rice, Mrs. Virgil B. Van Wagonen, Mrs. Neland H. Fuller and Miss Freida Hayes.

On May 19 Miss Mary Catherine Van Buren of 30 Pierpont street, Brooklyn, became the bride of Frank Harasimik of Riverhead. The ceremony was performed at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, by the rector, the Rev. John Howard Melish, in the presence of the immediate families and guests from New Rochelle and Kingston, N. Y., and from Elizabeth, Franklin and Cresskill, N. J. The bride is the daughter of De Witt Van Buren, formerly of Saugerties and a granddaughter of Mrs. Augustus H. Van Buren of this city. She was unattended. Her brother, Henry Van Buren, was best man. Following the simple but very pretty ceremony the bride and groom were given a reception by Mr. and Mrs. Huntley at their home at Bay Ridge. Mr. and Mrs. Harasimik will live at 318 Roanoke avenue, Riverhead.

Dr. and Mrs. E. K. Lee of Beacon, N. Y., formerly of Kingston, spent this past week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder of 140 Elmendorf street.

Miss Jean Estey of 165 Elmendorf street is spending yesterday and today at Elmira, N. Y., where she is attending a reunion of her class at Elmira College. Miss Estey was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. C. M. Estey, who is visiting friends at Elmira.

Wednesday the Rev. Alpheus A. Packard, Jr., rector of Holy Cross Church, and Arthur Kurtznacker motored to Freehold, N. J., where they attended the memorial festivities and conference of the New York and New Jersey provinces of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament. Mass was celebrated in St. Peter's Church which dates back to revolutionary days. It was in this church that soldiers from the battle of Monmouth were quartered. Luncheon was served at the American Hotel.

On Tuesday James S. MacPherson and his sister-in-law, Miss Katherine A. Burhans, motored from Albany to open Mr. MacPherson's old stone house at Hurley where they will spend the summer. They were also joined by Mrs. William Robinson of Jersey City who is spending the remainder of the week with them.

On Thursday of this week Mrs. Harry Clearwater of Hurley entertained her card club at their regular weekly luncheon and bridge. The guests were Mrs. Stanley Winne, Mrs. Raymond Craft, Mrs. Raymond Lewis, Mrs. Willis Locke, Mrs. Arthur Fritog, Mrs. Henry Battenfeld and Mrs. Parker Brinnier. Honors were won by Mrs. Winne, Mrs. Battenfeid and Mrs. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Fowler of Schenectady are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Rose at their home on Manor avenue.

On Decoration Day Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fogg entertained several of their friends at a buffet supper at their home on Livingston street. The members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Jansen Preston of Plainfield, N. J., Mrs. Eloise Lovatt, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Stewart and their daughters, Granger and Dorothy, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart.

Last Sunday Frederick Burgevin, son of Mrs. George Burgevin of 7 Johnston avenue, was ordained a deacon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine by Bishop Manning.

Mrs. Benjamin Moore of Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. O. E. Risch of Brooklyn have been spending several days as the guests of Miss Anna May Decker at her home on Lafayette avenue. On Decoration Day Miss Decker with her guests motored to Minnewaska for dinner.

This week-end Mr. and Mrs. J. Gales Holcombe are attending the Peekskill Horse Show where they have entered several of their well known mounts.

The many Kingstonians who are accustomed during the summer to motor to the Maverick on Sunday afternoon to attend the concerts, enjoying the atmosphere of simplicity and rural setting of the music hall, will be more than delighted to note that tomorrow, June 3, is the date for the reopening of the summer music season. COLLECTED TAXES.

A miracle seems to have taken place in Detroit. Its accomplishment may be a feather in advertising's cap. According to the story, businesslike methods of collecting taxes have caused Detroit's bonds to jump from the 30's to the 80's. Detroit, as the whole country knows, very nearly went down for the third count just before the national bank holiday in early 1933. The financial mess there was about as bad as it could be.

The mayor called in an expert in the mechanics of public finance and gave him the job of deputy city treasurer. He revamped the city's bookkeeping system, paying particular attention to taxes. He worked out a plan making payment of delinquent taxes attractive—removal of all penalties under certain conditions and extension of time for payments under others. In last November's election the voters approved the plan in an amendment to the city's charter. The expert next asked the council for advertising appropriations. He got them, and showered the community with posters, ads in all publications, including church and organization papers, and a half million leaflets, explaining the plan.

By January 10 of this year $8,900,000 had been collected and 100,000 parcels of Detroit land had been cleared of all delinquent taxes. By April 10 another $6,000,000 had come in. Today taxes technically in default total only $10,000,000 as compared with $49,000,000 last November. That, says an admiring outsider, is something for a city to brag about.

HOME HISTORICAL SCENES.

A private school in an Ohio city is inaugurating an educational tour of certain historic spots in the state. Twenty-five pupils, accompanied by as many adults—teachers and parents—will make a two-day motor tour of the places selected.

They will go to some of the Indian Mounds, other places of geological interest and to some early settlements. An authority on Indian trails of the state will be along to share his knowledge with the youngsters. Much of it, no doubt, will be as new to the parents as to the pupils themselves.

There might well be more of this sort of historic exploring. Americans who are wondering what sort of vacations they will have in the United States this summer should look into the historical background and relics in their own states. A good many Americans who have gazed in awe and pleasure at historic buildings and scenic marvels abroad are astonishingly ignorant of what their own country holds of such attractions. This is a fine time to get acquainted. For those who have little time and little money, short excursions in their own counties and states—with the advice of museum or library authorities—will provide much of interest. For others there is a whole wide continent inviting them.

FOUR-PLANE AIR TRAIN.

Something new in aviation was tried in Russia the other day. It was an "air train," consisting of a motored plane for locomotive and three gliders for cars. The motored plane and its three gliders all carried skilled pilots.

The train took off near Moscow from the flying field of Osoviachim, a volunteer society devoted to the promotion of aviation. It moved with railroad precision, passing over town after town on schedule at a speed of 110 miles an hour. The first stop was made at Kharkov. First the whole train circled the field, then the gliders were "unhitched." All four planes descended individually, the gliders performing a few stunts on their way down. The journey was resumed a few hours later.

It will take more than one test to prove the practicality of this method of air transportation. It is doubtless economical to have one powerful motored plane pull several gliders if safety is not sacrificed. But more will be heard of this.

TREATING MENTAL CASES.

Notwithstanding the fact that the mental hospitals of the country report more patients [illegible] than all other hospitals put together, and notwithstanding that figures show that at the present rate of progress fifty years from now one half of the world will be in mental hospitals, the outlook for the prevention and cure of mental patients never looked so encouraging.

Why?

The encouraging thing in all these statements is that they draw attention to mental ailments—how they begin, the early symptoms, the benefit of treatment, how they may be avoided.

In former days medical students were taught the classical or typical symptoms of the different mental ailments so as to be able to recognize each one, and in a few cases give treatment.

Today there is less tendency on the part of physicians to try to place a patient's symptoms as belonging to any one ailment. In fact symptoms are treated without giving any name to the ailment.

Dr. Arlie B. Bock, in the New England Medical Journal states that in an examination the patient should be considered as a person. He should be offered the opportunity to discuss his problem. The average general practitioner can usually get the full story with complete details.

Thus, instead of the mental symptoms receiving treatment by laboratory tests, and an endeavor to fit the symptoms into some definite ailment, the patient himself is treated. This means that he is allowed and encouraged to tell all about his "troubles", difficulties, financial reverses, fears, and disappointments.

In addition to these things that are on "his mind", the patient may complain of chronic diarrhoea, constipation, a "steady" pain in the back or elsewhere, indigestion, sleeplessness, severe headaches and other pains.

If a thorough examination shows no real or organic trouble, the physician explains to the patient that his symptoms are entirely due to his mental attitude, his outlook on life, to a tired nervous system, and that he can get back to normal health if he follows the physician's directions.

Dr. Bock's final statement is, "It is important to give the patient a better understanding of the machine —his body—in which he is living, and a point of view about meeting his problem".

CODLING MOTH WAR WITH SPRAYS WILL BEGIN SOON

Geneva, N. Y., June 2—Despite the fact that the severe cold of the past winter destroyed many overwintering larvae of the codling moth, early season observations in many western New York orchards indicate that the usual precautions in the form of poison sprays will be required to insure fruit free from codling moth injury next fall. Fruit growers in the western part of the state are making preparations for the first cover sprays which will be due the last of May or early in June.

Full information on codling moth spray programs for various sections of New York is given in Circular No. 140 issued by the Experiment Station here and available upon request: "Because of sectional and local differences in the degree of codling moth infestation, it is not possible to recommend a single spray program for this pest that will be applicable to all parts of the state," explains Prof. S. W. Harman, in charge of the codling moth investigations at the station and author of the circular.

"For this reason, the orchards of the state are classified into the three groups of light, average, and heavy infestation. The spray program to be followed in any one orchard will depend upon the class in which that orchard falls. Experiences of the past few years should be taken as a guide for determining the classification of the orchard."

Lightly infested orchards according to Prof. Harman's grouping include those plantings in which fewer than the recommended number of cover sprays have afforded protection against the codling moth. These orchards will be found chiefly close to Lake Ontario and in the Hudson valley and Lake Champlain district. Orchards with average infestations require applications of three pounds of lead arsenate for all of the first and second brood sprays. Severely infested orchards are represented by plantings in which satisfactory control has not been obtained during the past few years with the recommended lead arsenate sprays. In many cases, says Prof. Harman, control of the codling moth would doubtless be greatly simplified by attention to supplementary control practices described in the circular.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper has at last explained to his own satisfaction how a murderer killed a stranger and a policeman in Pierre Dufresne's house. But he cannot make a case until he can identify the stranger, and determine how the murderer escaped. He has reconstructed the crime for Lafferty, the reporter, and he [illegible]

Chapter 24

BANGING DOOR

"NEXT, the murderer rinsed and dried the second liquor glass and put it back in the cabinet," explained Harper. "The dead man's pockets and clothing were emptied of anything that might establish his identity. But the killer over-reached himself there by making too thorough a job of that. A couple of keys, a pen or pencil, two or three things like that would have created a more natural appearance. By means unknown to us, the murderer then made his escape."

"But what about the banging door?" Lafferty insisted. "The killer took a big chance there. It might have drawn some one's attention while the murderer was in the middle of all those details."

"I've got an answer for that, too. The lock-bar was let down just before the get-away. There was a purpose behind that banging door. It was supposed to draw attention to the crime!"

"The murderer wanted the bodies discovered right away?"

"Exactly."

"But why was it so important to have the bodies discovered at once?"

"There can be only one answer to that—the murderer had a good alibi and he didn't want to waste it. Had these bodies been lying here all night, discovery would not have come until the Whitmores entered this room. That might have been some time today, perhaps not until tomorrow. But that would not do. The killer wanted it known that the deed was done early last evening. Why, unless he had prepared a protecting alibi?"

LAFFERTY was interested. "That sounds as if you were aiming at Dufresne. He certainly has the classiest alibi of the lot."

"Yes, he was practically a prisoner, under lock and key. But, aside from his ironclad alibi, the fact that the gun was left in his drawer, uncleaned and not reloaded, seems to point to his innocence. A guilty man would not have been so careless."

"It's pretty hard to feel sure about anything so long as we have no idea of the motive behind the killing," Lafferty commented.

"That makes it difficult," Harper agreed. "And if we go back a little in point of time, we're up against some erratic behavior. The earliest event of which we have any knowledge shows us the masquerader buying his disguise in October, while the Dufresnes were still away. Why did he do that? Why did he want to look like Dufresne? We don't know and it's an important factor."

"Perhaps he counted on being taken for Dufresne," Lafferty hazarded. "In case some one saw him prowling around the house. The resemblance was remarkable, although without the disguise there was practically no similarity."

"That may be the reason, but if so, whom did he meet here? The Dufresnes, Andrews and Donaghy were at Moose Head Lodge. The maid, Ellen Becker, had been sent away months before. The Whitmores, knowing Dufresne was in Maine, wouldn't have been fooled for more than ten seconds, unless this man came here to meet them. Which only substitutes one set of absurdities for another. Besides, I am quite convinced that the Whitmores can be dropped from our calculations.

"The next real mystery concerns the threatening letters. What was their object, if action was really contemplated? The letters really meant business, as the ambush proved."

Lafferty thought it over. "You can't dodge the inference that there was a conspiracy afoot to do away with Dufresne. Those letters made no demands for money. Just the threat to kill. That backs up my theory—Mrs. Dufresne teamed up with some one to get rid of her husband. The letters were sent first, as a blind to give us a false lead to work on."

"IF Mrs. Dufresne teamed up with some one here in the house, where does our dead man enter the picture? And if not, then who hid the gun this morning? Certainly she did not."

"Just the same, I'm holding out for my theory. She's back of it, and her husband is foolishly trying to cover up for her. We don't know what's been going on in their private lives."

The door was supposed to draw attention.

"But, Jack, haven't I pointed out that there's a break in the link between the dead man and the crank letters? I don't say he didn't write them, but we can't prove that he did, and the fact remains that none of his fingerprints appear on any of the letter sheets.

"Dufresne himself smeared over some of the early letters, but later he was more careful in his handling of them. There is a pretty fair thumb mark on the left margin of No. 3 letter, but we've combed our own files and submitted it to the U. S. Bureau, with no result. That thumb is not down in the archives nor is our unknown visitor. Which is not very surprising, for from the start it did not seem to be the work of habitual criminals. We'll have to read those letters over and over and try to deduce something from the contents as our knowledge of the case expands."

Harper was interrupted by the entrance of Andrews, who announced that luncheon would be served, if they were ready. Behind him came John Whitmore carrying a small table, which he set up. The butler spread a snowy cloth and proceeded to place the china and silver handed him by his docile assistant.

Sergeant Harper and Lafferty lingered silently by the fireplace while these preparations were going on. Andrews drew up chairs for them and when they were seated Whitmore lumbered in with the silver-lidded platters on a tray. The butler arranged the various dishes, then retired noiselessly.

"Service de luxe," remarked Lafferty, peering interestedly under the silver covers. "Um. That looks good." He had uncovered a dish of creamed chicken with mushrooms, in a ring of currant jelly. "And hot biscuits, all snug in a blanket. Steve, you must have a drag with our host. I thought a little snack in the servants' quarters might be the peak of his generosity. He has to tolerate us, but he is not obliged to do us so well. He must be trying to soften our hearts."

POSTMAN FOLLOWS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

For 16 years Jacob Egger carried mail on a Columbus route and his service record and "No. 45", his badge, were his pride.

Then Postmaster Nathan McCoy promoted the elder Egger to foreman of the inquiry section. Egger confessed he dreaded the prospect of losing "No. 45" and the record he had made to somebody else.

So, he asked McCoy to transfer his son, Ray, who carried mail on another route, to "No. 45".

The postmaster complied.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY :: Rate of Gain Drops In Production, Trade

(By The Associated Press.)

The rate of advance in production and trade slackened in April and the first half of May, reports the conference of statisticians in industry of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Production of passenger cars and trucks in April in the United States and Canada increased 4 per cent over March and 93 per cent over April a year ago. The first four-month increase this year over last year was 102 per cent.

Building an engineering construction fell sharply to a point 26.3 per cent below March, but it was 132.3 per cent over April, 1933.

Steel production made a fifth consecutive increase in April with an increase in daily average output of 13.2 per cent over March and 115.4 per cent over April, 1933. Steel operations in April were 54.2 per cent of capacity.

April production of electric power showed about the usual seasonal decline, the board reported.

Rail shipments of all classes of commodities declined 4.6 per cent under the March level but were 16.3 per cent over April of last year. The seasonal decrease between March and April in recent years has been 0.1 per cent.

Dollar value of department store sales in April declined 1.4 per cent but were 5 per cent over a year ago. Prices advanced 0.4 per cent in April over March, a total of 1.1 per cent this year.

Wanted: An Outlet

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

For some reason Molly at eight was a very destructive child. She cut and tore or scribbled on everything whether hers or not, and often defaced valuable articles by her unreasoning vandalism.

No amount of punishment or remonstrance seemed to cure her. She apparently was obsessed with the desire to destroy wantonly.

Finally her mother changed her tactics in treating Molly's case. She stopped resisting Molly's impulses and tried to make use of them. She suddenly realized that the child did not know how to use her hands or her creative energy constructively. So Molly was set to dress-making.

Her mother bought an attractive, colorful material and taught Molly how to cut, baste and sew a summer dress for herself. Almost automatically the depredations ceased, and scissors and pencils were no longer a household menace.

Half the marring of furniture and walls by seemingly destructive children would stop if the children were given a legitimate outlet for their energies. The desire to create with one's hands is in some form innate in nearly everyone. The youngster who does not know how to use his hands, whether on tools or artistic work, will spend his impulse on destruction. At least, then, he will have something to show for his "work."

If this instinct is turned into the right channels, and turned early in life, such difficulties can be avoided.

The smallest toddler can be taught to cut out pictures or draw on the black-board. Surprisingly soon it can learn to sew, or to hammer nails in the right places. And as they grow older, children should be guided and helped in making things of some kind.

LIST OF FRUITS THAT SELL WELL AT ROADSIDE

Geneva, N. Y., June 2—"Fruits for Roadside Markets" is the title of a new publication just issued by the state experiment station here and designed to serve both the fruit grower and the consumer by supplying information on the best varieties of the different fruits that should be available on the roadside stand at different periods throughout the season. The information presented in the circular will help fruit growers select those varieties of the hardy fruits that will find most ready sale at the roadside and will also assist in planning the fruit plantation in such a way as to provide a constant supply of each of the fruits throughout the season.

The consumer will find much in this little pamphlet to aid him in buying to the best advantage at the roadside, particularly as to the kinds of different fruits in season at a given time. While one would not expect to find all of the fruits mentioned on any stand or even in one locality, one will be well informed on a wide variety of fruits and of kinds that might reasonably be encountered on a trip along the highway.

An introductory statement to the circular explains that, "Varieties that provide a succession of the various fruits for roadside markets are discussed and the principal characteristics of each briefly portrayed so as to convey a general idea of the fruit. For convenience, the ripening season is divided into bi-monthly periods, beginning with the period of June 1 to 15 and continuing through to October 1, concluding with a list of those fruits that ripen through the autumn months."

The fruits dealt with include strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries, blackberries, sweet and sour cherries, apples, peaches, pears, plums, and grapes. A copy of the circular, designated as No. 144, may be obtained upon request to the experiment station.

The Party

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Honey Bear had expected to see Jupiter looking bruised, but suddenly she realized that Blacky's face was swollen and that his paws were making him quite uncomfortable.

"We were stung by the bees," Blacky explained, and told all that had happened before Jupiter had fallen down the well.

Honey Bear and the others went for mud—which was always easy to get around Puddle Muddle—and rubbed it on the faces and paws of the cubs. Then she rubbed Jupiter's bruises, and every one made a fuss over him, saying every few minutes:

"How do you feel now?"

"We've had so much worry and suffering," said Willy Nilly, "that I think we should all have a party and celebrate for a change."

"Yes, let's have a party," quacked the ducks.

"Let's have a party," crowed Christopher.

"Let's have a party," barked Rip.

"We want to celebrate after all this," growled the bears.

"It's a very good idea," cackled Top Notch.

So they all went back to Puddle Muddle, and Willy Nilly prepared a feast.

There were seeds and grain and honey and jelly and bones and berries and fruit and milk and brook water and cake. How every one did eat!

After the feast the bears went back to their cave. They needed a good rest. But Willy Nilly knew that he had better get the bucket out of the well before Grandpa came back. As he reached the Galumps' there stood Grandma and Grandpa!

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—From all indications, the present session of congress will enter the home stretch next month and cross the finish line with as dazzling a burst of speed as has been seen on capitol hill in many years.

All hopes for anything resembling a leisurely coast to the tape by either house apparently have been doomed by recent developments.

The sudden and confusing turn the question of what is to be done about silver has taken has muddled the legislative situation considerably. In addition, President Roosevelt's announced intention of sending some sort of message on war debts to congress before adjournment has complicated things further.

Even if some sort of agreement on the former is reached by the White House and congressional leaders, the latter is certain to open flood gates for the release of emotions long imprisoned.

• • •

Wrangling Ahead

THE senate already faces long and dreary days of wrangling to clear its calendar of pending legislation. The tariff bill, alone, assures this. The house, while not so bogged down as the senate, quite easily could get itself tied into a knot on such controversial questions as silver and war debts.

Stormy days are in prospect for the next month or six weeks, but once they have subsided a period of calm is in prospect for at least a part of the summer months.

Members of congress will lose no time in shuffling off for their homes and re-election campaigns after adjournment. And Mr. Roosevelt is said by his friends already to be talking in delighted fashion of the day when he can board a navy warship and cruise lazily eastward to Hawaii and the Philippines.

That the cares of the presidency will be left behind by Mr. Roosevelt insofar as possible on this trip is indicated by plans now in the making.

• • •

Entourage Limited

AS ON all such previous excursions he has taken since entering the White House, the President is insisting upon as complete freedom from observation on this cruise as possible. His entourage will be limited. Present plans call for only three newspapermen to accompany him.

He is adamant on such occasions and all the arguments of his secretariat as to the necessities of the press in the case of a President can't shake him.

Steve Early, his secretary in charge of relations with the press, recently admitted when the question of newspaper coverage on a yachting trip was up that he talked with the President no less than five times.

"Each time," said Early, "he just grinned and said 'No.'"

School No. 5 Wins Legion Auxiliary Prize

The American Legion Auxiliary coupon campaign which was carried on in the city public grammar schools has been most successfully concluded. The Auxiliary will give a first and second prize to the two schools which collected the largest number of coupons in proportion to the registration of the school. Public School No. 5, Frank L. Meagher, principal, will be awarded the first prize. No. 5 pupils collected a total of 7,531 coupons. Public School No. 2, Arthur Russell, principal, is the second prize winner, the pupils of that school having collected a total of 3,405 coupons.

These coupons will be redeemed by the manufacturers of the products from which they were obtained for cash and the money thus realized is sent to the American Legion Veterans' Mountain Camp at Tupper Lake to be used in the work which is carried on there. The Kingston unit of the Legion Auxiliary is most gratified over the results of the coupon campaign and feels very proud of the schools of the city through whose efforts a goodly sum of money has been raised for the Tupper Lake camp.

The prizes will be awarded with appropriate ceremony at an early date.

Following is the list of the coupons collected by each school and their percentage, based on registration and average daily attendance of pupils.

"Genesis" Story Found in "Bible" Of Maya Indians

BY F. B. COLTON.

Washington, (P)—The "Bible" of the great Maya Indian empire of Central America which contained an account of creation of the world in six days and its destruction by a flood long before the white man's Bible came to the new world, has just been translated into English.

This book was the holy writ of a civilization that rivalled in glory and power the dynasties of Egypt. It is known as the "Book of Chilam Balam," a Maya prophet who was living at the time of the Spanish conquest. Originally it was written in the Maya hieroglyphics or picture writing.

Prophecy of Fall.

Tragically for the Maya empire, the book contained a prophecy that led directly to the nation's downfall. Chilam Balam prophesied in it that the Maya god Quetzalcoatl would sometime return in the flesh with white-robed attendants. Soon came the Spaniards, who must have seemed like gods to the Maya, and they were believed to be Quetzalcoatl and his followers. As a result the Maya extended a friendly reception to the strangers who were destined to conquer them.

In the ancient Maya empire copies of Chilam Balam's books were scattered throughout the many magnificent cities that then flourished in Central America. It is believed they all were destroyed, unless a copy may be preserved unknown in a Spanish library.

Transcribed by Priests.

Before the book was destroyed, however, it was transcribed under direction of Spanish priests in the Maya language written in Spanish script which the conquered Maya learned in mission schools. One of these versions has been translated by Ralph L. Roys, of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, which has undertaken to reconstruct as far as possible the lost glories of the Maya.

Chilam Balam and the other Maya prophets were unique in that they always saw to it that their prophecies came true. The Maya religion taught that events took place in great cycles and recurred time after time. What was happening today had happened in the past and would happen again. To foretell the future, therefore, the prophet needed only to look up what had happened in the past at a corresponding point in the cycle of events.

Advance Information.

Since certain events were expected to happen, however, matters were arranged so that they did happen.

Chilam Balam, it is believed, had his own canny way of making his prophecy about the return of Quetzalcoatl come true. Not long after he predicted that the god's return was imminent, the Spaniards arrived in seeming fulfillment of the prophecy.

There is good reason to believe, however, that Chilam Balam already had heard rumors of the coming of the Spaniards, who were in Cuba for some time before they reached the Maya country.

CLOTHES, TOO, ARE UNDER THE SPELL OF JUNE

New York—Square deals naturally lead to square necklines. There are plenty of others of course, but when one gets to checking up on the various shaped necklines seen dancing and dining about where good clothes dine and dance, it certainly seems as thought the square deal had extended to the decolletage.

One also is inclined to believe that the new low in necklines, which was supposed to be coming in, has paused long enough to give us a summer of the smart higher bodice particularly effective in such sheers as are at present used for gala dresses and others.

So many of the new frocks have winglike shoulder treatments and so many floating cascades that what with the transparent materials and the dainty colors the picture is very ethereal, a fact all the more emphasized by the occasional, perhaps more than occasional dark dress.

Go where you will cotton is there before you. And the evening party, no matter how important is no exception. Organdie and its sister fabrics are everywhere. So too is net. In spite of all this there is still plenty of chiffon flowered or otherwise and any number of handkerchief and other linens, embroidered, eyeleted and plain.

Blue has been the reigning evening shade for so long that it is pleasant to be able to report that yellow is something better than an also ran and that pinks in many charming shades, not to mention white go fluttering by.

Throughout the summer it is safe to bank on gossamerlike materials for day and night and for dashing or demure designs in contrasting shades. It still pleases us to go from the extreme of mannish shirts and shorts to the extreme of lacy petticoats and billowing, diaphanous dance gowns.

One other hat silhouette still being worn in quantity by the smart Parisienne is the beret, doctored into shape, sometimes pulled forward, sometimes contrarily pulled back, so that it stands up like a halo around the forehead.

White is prominent in both day and evening clothes, particularly cottons and linens.

The white dress for daytime wear becomes new as interpreted in a tailored type, in organdie by Bruyere.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Heavy gold link jewelry, in bracelets and necklets, is one of the accessories which strike the eye in any smart gathering. Earrings of the clip variety, but small and inconspicuous, are also worn both in the daytime and the evening.

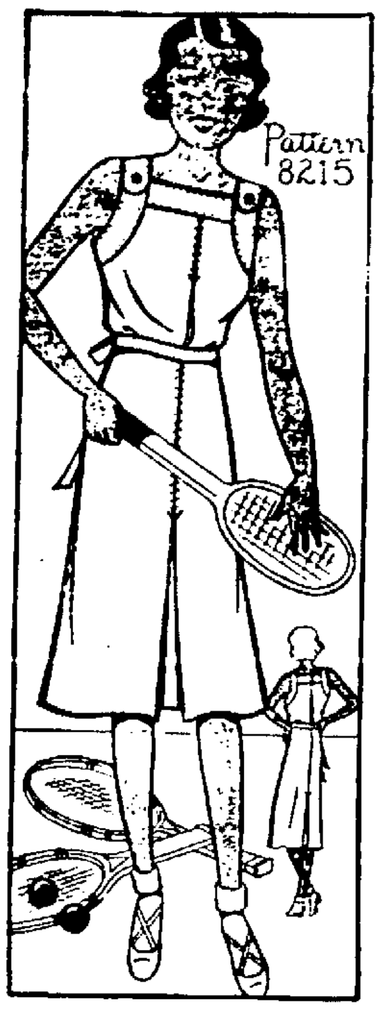
To go with the hats, the hair is pulled gently back at the sides to show the tips of the ears, but is not very fluffy at back. If there are ringlets, they are tight ones, and the hair is cut as short as possible, especially near the nape of the neck. Many smart women have cut their hair short and smooth at back, with just a little soft wave in it so that it can be brushed in a swirl toward one side. In every instance, neatness is the ideal aimed at.

The tie-around skirt worn over shorts, bodice and topped by a three-quarter coat make a four-part beach ensemble in white and green, of Marcel Rochas. Plaid knee length skirts worn over bathing suits, are a Schiaparelli fashion. Glazed printed calico adds another to the list of cottons, interpreted by Schiaparelli in knee length dresses. Chintz patterns in printed crepes appear in Mainbocher's short coats and beach dresses. Skirts with brassiere tops, and short beach dresses, of gingham, with matching or striped jackets, by Vera Borea, are another indication of interest in skirted fashions in French beach collections.

The week-end wardrobe, a favorite presentation of Patou, is done this season by this couturiere, in sets of three interchangeable garments, combining navy with white; suits are important in this outfit, which also includes a pajama suit and a sports frock.

The jersey sailor dress in two-piece effect with middy collar has caused more interest than any other single sports frock in a long time.

OUR DAILY PATTERN



Cool and Short For Tennis

8215. For tennis, or for any warm day when Miss Eight-to-Sixteen is not playing tennis, this dress is cool and smart. The neck and sleevebands are a firm finish, preventing any slipping while in active play, and they are also flattering to the wearer. Inverted pleats at front and back contribute to chic as well as usefulness. Make it in a few hours of work by following carefully the step by step sewing instructions given.

This dress calls for white, but any pastel color would be equally good with a sun-tanned skin. Pastel pink, or blue make a golden brown complexion look enchanting. Slash the back to the waist, if you like, it will not ruin the design.

Designed in sizes: 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 12 requires 2 1-3 yards of 35 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

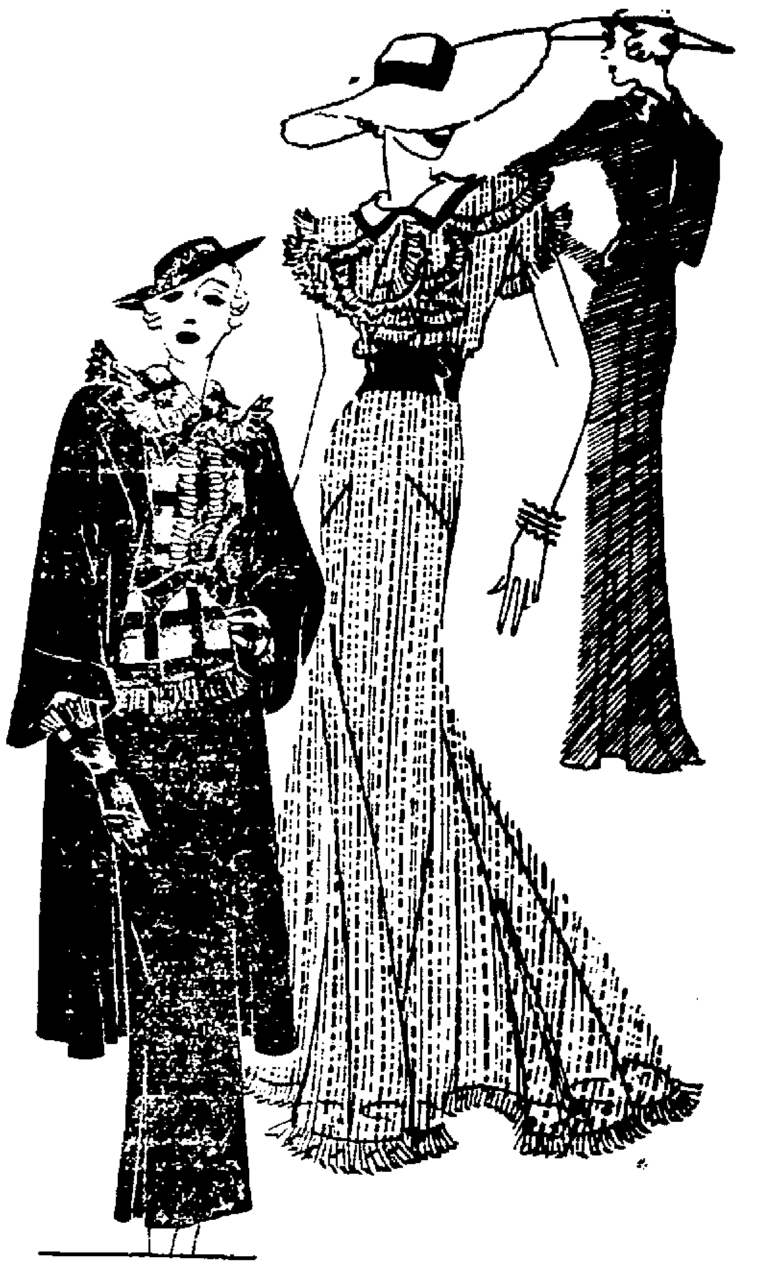
A Summer Wardrobe For The Traveler Or Stay-At-Home



At left, an interesting ensemble of brown alpaca introduces an overblouse in plaid organdie, with gloves to match.

The informal evening frock in printed marquisette illustrates the current favor for pleated edges, which in this case emphasizes the jabot neckline.

A summer suit for town or travel is developed in a brown cotton woven to simulate a self-striped herringbone cloth. The jacket slips over the head middy fashion, worn over a checked gingham blouse.

At left is a redingote costume inspired by Russian influences which is of navy faille posed over matching georgette. The sleeves introduce pleated ruffles of white lace and below the standing collar is a cutout triangle. The off-face hat of halo type is navy with a touch of white.

Dove gray is chosen for the other costume, which consists of dress and square-shoulders cape. A white organdie bow marks the neckline, and a nickel-studded buckle finishes the belt. A breton in gray ballibuntl complements this frock.

Wavy line seersucker pique makes the white middy blouse with monogram which tops a navy blue linen skirt having horizontal pockets. The sailor collar is square cut at back and the cuff-hem of the blouse is an interesting detail.

White cotton boucle lace appears in simple, youthful spectator sports frock with novelty wool yarn and wood button fastened belt in contrasting tones.

Hospital Auxiliary Hears Good Reports

The Kingston Hospital Auxiliary held its last meeting before the summer vacation on Tuesday, May 29, with the president, Mrs Frederick Snyder, presiding. A report of the recent successful card party held in the nurses' home showed a goodly amount earned. An invitation to attend the graduating exercises Tuesday evening, June 5, at Kingston High School auditorium was received from the board of managers of the school of nursing. Mrs. Arthur H. Wicks, chairman of the sewing committee, reported 159 pieces completed for the month of April and May. Mrs. Wicks extended thanks to her committee, also to those who so ably assisted her at the card party. The auxiliary donated a substantial amount to the board of managers toward the purchase of a portable X-ray. It was decided to hold a dance November 30, in the Municipal Auditorium. Delicious cake and cream were served by Miss Allen and Miss Porter and enjoyed by all. The auxiliary extended thanks to Miss Allen for her hospitality during the year.

Pickford-Fairbanks Peace Is Unlikely Now

Los Angeles, June 2 (AP)—Talk of a reconciliation between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks faded today as the famous actress's lawyer, Loyd Wright, took steps to prosecute the divorce suit she filed last year.

On Wright's application, Superior Judge Frank C. Collier signed an order for publication of summons in the action. Ninety days must elapse before the case can be set for trial.

Wright presented an affidavit, signed by Miss Pickford, saying that Fairbanks is not in California, having left more than a year ago and that his present residence is London, where he is engaged in film activities.

Two Former State Assemblymen Dead

Albany, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Two former state assemblymen, both more than 80 years old, are dead today in widely separated sections of New York.

Harry H. Hawley, 80, died last night at Malone after a two-day illness of pneumonia. A Republican, he served in the Assembly in 1908 and 1909. He was a former county clerk.

Dewitt C. Dominick, 82, retired real estate developer and Orange county assemblyman from 1925 to 1931, also succumbed at his home yesterday.

Knocking on Wood

Knocking on wood is one of the most ancient of superstitions, writes G. H. Turner in the Kansas City Times. It originated more than 2,000 years ago among the druids, the powerful order of priests and judges who ruled the Celtic peoples of Gaul, Britain, and Ireland. These people, who embraced a primitive form of tree worship, believed that trees harbored protective spirits. Therefore, to rap on a tree, the dwelling place of a friendly spirit, was to invoke the spirit of the tree to protect one against impending misfortune. Knocking on wood is, of course, the equivalent of knocking on a dead tree.

Prof. Rogers Renews Advice On Marriage

Boston, Mass., June 2 (AP)—Prof Robert E. Rogers who created a bit of a stir several years ago by advising young men to "marry the boss's daughter and be a snob," has new ideas about marriage.

The ideal wife, he told the senior class of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is a college girl with a government job.

"Wait until she gets a job in Washington," says Prof. Rogers.

"Then all that is necessary is to have the wife get her college-graduate husband a job with the government "where he will have peace and quiet for the rest of his life, since the government rarely discharges an employe."

To Tour City

At the mayor's suggestion the board decided to make a tour of the city next Wednesday afternoon to view what work had been done and what was contemplated. Mayor Heiselman called attention to the means of entering and leaving Murphy street. The only means of entry and exit are by way of the Washington avenue viaduct, and the mayor expressed the opinion that the fire trucks would never be able to get into that street.

TO THE DEPOSITORS, FRIENDS AND STOCKHOLDERS
NATIONAL ULSTER COUNTY BANK OF KINGSTON

As of the 4th of May, which was the end of the first six months operating period, John I. Cole, Son & Co., certified public accountants, 253 Broadway, New York city, were called in to make an independent audit and check of the affairs of the National Ulster County Bank of Kingston. We give to you, a condensed statement as prepared by John I. Cole, Son & Co., covering the affairs of this bank as of May 14, 1934. This condensed statement was set up in popular form to make it more readable and understandable.

These are unusual times, both in the commercial and in the banking world, and the Directors of this bank are endeavoring to operate intelligently, obtaining the best of outside counsel on investments and other specialized banking matters. The Directors have in mind always, first, the rights of depositors to be protected; second, the rights of the legitimate commercial borrowers to be served; third, the stockholders' rights to receive proper and continuous dividends thru normal operating earnings after adequate reserves have been established, and fourth the desire that full and complete information from time to time be given to depositors and stockholders.

This is to certify that we have made a thorough and complete examination of the affairs of The National Ulster County Bank of Kingston, N. Y., at the close of business May 14, 1934, and found the above to correctly reflect the true condition of the bank. There were no overdrafts or bills payable at the date of this examination.

* Pricing the securities owned by the bank at market values at the close of May 14, 1934, and deducting possible losses on loans, the result would show a Net Profit of $60,307.47, which is not shown on the books of the bank as of May 14, 1934. In other words, the capital funds would appear as $407403.68 if present values were considered."

NRA Chiefs Hope to Avert Two Strikes

Washington, June 2 (AP).—NRA chiefs held strong hope today that threatened strikes in the cotton textile and steel industries would be averted.

Despite a last-minute hitch that deadlocked employers and Union leaders in the textile controversy, Hugh S. Johnson expressed the opinion that points at issue could be ironed out.

The recovery chief also saw prospects—possibly by means of a special labor board—of preventing the capital-labor struggle that threatens to rend the steel industry by the middle of the month.

Although the textile strike, calling out more than 300,000 workers, has been set for Monday, Johnson was hopeful.

An NRA order permitting cotton textile production to be clipped 25 per cent during the 12 weeks' slack season precipitated the strike call. The union leaders ask for a 30-hour week, with no reduction in pay, and insist the "stretch-out system" must go.

Showing signs of irritation, Johnson walked out of the textile conference last night and it abruptly recessed until today. He indicated both sides were tired by long hours of argument.

The threat of industrial war in steel simmered today as leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, retired to their homes to study the situation.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 2 (AP).—After touching new lows for the year to date, leading stocks met mild support in the latter part of the brief session today and either reduced or cancelled their declines. The moderate recovery was not accompanied by any exceptional activity, however, and the close was irregular. Transfers approximated 450,000 shares.

Some short covering and outside buying appeared in the market on the strength of reports that an agreement was near in the Toledo strike situation and that General Johnson's conferences in the textile controversy might result in a compromise which would avert a serious walk-out in this industry.

Metal stocks such as McIntyre Porcupine, U. S. Smelting, International Nickel and Cerro De Pasco were steady to firm, as were American Telephone, Electric Autolite, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Baltimore & Ohio, Public Service of New Jersey, Celanese, Pennsylvania and N. Y. Central. Allied Chemical dropped 2, and Continental Can, American Can, Corn Products, Liggett & Myers B, Western Union, Santa Fe, General Motors, Chrysler, Loew's, National Steel and General Foods were about unchanged to a trifle lower.

Belleek Porcelain

The luster of polished mother-of-pearl and the fragility of egg shell brittleness make Belleek porcelain easy to recognize. Belleek is manufactured in northern Ireland in the little town which bears its name and holds the distinction of being the only chinaware made in the Emerald Isle. It is considered a high brow when classed with other porcelains.

The Reason

"WELL, how do you like that leg?" asked Dr. Jeff Barnes.

"It's a fine leg for the shape it's in," admitted Gay Nelson dryly, twisting the member delicately and moving the numb toes slowly as the heavy bandages dropped off. "Now," she demanded gravely, "how much longer?"

"It will be a month before you can leave the hospital," Doctor Barnes announced firmly.

"Oh, darn!" Gay exclaimed in petulant disappointment.

"I know a better word than that," laughed Doctor Barnes at her impatience.

"I know the same word," retorted Gay sarcastically, never giving him a look.

Doctor Barnes was distinguished for his success in bone surgery, his good looks, and his unshakable belief in "a reason for everything."

He noted the flicker of pain in her lifted eyes as he added:

"I know you are weary of the hospital and of—us all."

He tried to make the "us" very impersonal and, failing, added quietly:

"But you will not be lame. Not even a limp! I promise."

Gay managed a white smile.

"That's great! Heaven knows a newspaper woman needs good legs."

"I presume the waiting will be the worst part of the cure. For one of your nervous temperament. Tediously exhausting. . . ."

There was a great fascination about this Gay Nelson, the doctor reasoned as he departed. She was like fleeting sunshine on a winter day.

Fleeting! That was the word and it stung him with a sudden cruel realization. In four weeks she would leave Trinity hospital and he'd never see her again. Neither would he ever be able to forget her.

• • •

"I'd like to take you out to your first dinner," he ventured one evening as the last week of her stay waned into 48 hours. As silence greeted his invitation he urged, "Just to celebrate our joint production. You have helped immeasurably in your recovery. I'm proud of your case of bone surgery."

"Who said I'd be hungry?" she groaned dourly. "The way I feel now I never want to even look at food. When I do, I can pay for my own. And I never dine out with married men unless they want to be interviewed."

Gay's eyes were clear blue ice, as she gathered strength at his teasing smile and went on:

"After what you've seen and heard, you'd hardly expect me to sit and listen patiently to another man's story of a wife who could not understand him. You'll live through the experience without identifying scars, if all your patients are like me, Doctor Barnes. You'll live to learn, too," with a deep chuckle, "that your wife understands you—even better than you suspect."

The veiling lashes wavered and she was looking full at him with eyes suddenly hard.

"I guessed all this," she said with a quiet conviction, "when I noticed how your suits and ties matched your hair and eyes. No one but a woman, a woman who loved you, would have thought of that."

"But you did notice?" he laughed softly in triumph, his eyes lighting in combat.

"Noticing is my job," she retorted. Then she turned on him hotly.

"Men know only two types of women—the drudge and the butterfly. The drudge they accept and endure. The butterfly they pity and protect. Take it from me, the butterfly has all the luck. Nothing is expected of her, and," a flash of thin expressive fingers, "she puts out exactly that—nothing!"

"But can't you see or won't you acknowledge," the man continued, honestly convinced of his cause, "that its so confounded repressing having your life routined to hours? Even your amusements to schedule. It makes a man rebel, turn outlaw, from very resentment to rule."

"And then that man tries to express that freedom with—some other woman," laughed Gay dryly.

"Oh, I can't expect you to understand," he returned heatedly. "You've had humanity burned out of you. Why you'd even be afraid to take a flyer in happiness."

"Yes," she answered calmly.

Doctor Barnes rose indignantly.

He could have sworn afterward that he saw two tears on the pale mocking face just in the violet shadows of her eyes.

• • •

He hurried back to the hospital next morning, sick from that fleeting obsession that had haunted him all night.

"But," said the nurse with a puzzled look at his inquiry, "I thought, of course, you knew, Doctor Barnes. Miss Nelson left yesterday at noon."

Doctor Barnes answered firmly, hastily, "Oh, I see."

In the hospital office he found a note from Gay. A signed check was enclosed ready for him to write in the amount of his fee. Something between a sob and a curse burst from his lips as he read her farewell dig. A dig that pierced his stupid bachelor's heart:

Jeff:

Your egotism will of course demand some explanation for my flight without an address. The answer is quite simple. A clever man would have known.

GAY.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Butler was held from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home, Friday morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 at St. Mary's Church where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Very Rev. John J. Stanley, pastor. The church was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends. There was a long funeral cortege and a profusion of beautiful floral pieces and spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards, attesting to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. DeWitt C. Dominick, for 45 years a well known citizen of Walden, died at his home there Wednesday, aged 82 years. Born at Gallupville, N. Y., a descendent of Col. George Herkimer, he was educated at Albany State Normal, graduating in 1876 and receiving a degree from Cornell University five years later. He came to Walden in 1889 as superintendent of schools, and during his connection with the schools bought and merged the Walden Herald and the Walden Citizen, into the Walden Citizen-Herald. Later he sold the paper and became connected with the lumber business and was extensively interested in promoting real estate and manufacturing enterprises. He was a Republican in politics and was elected to the Assembly from the first district of Orange county in 1925, serving until 1931, when he refused a renomination.

During the offertory of the Mass John Raible sang "O Salutaris Hostia," and at the conclusion sang "Jesu Dulcis Memoria." A large number of floral pieces and numerous cards were sent to the home by sorrowing relatives and devoted friends as silent tributes to his memory. The bearers were members of the family and the interment was made in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery where the Rev. Father Neumann gave the final absolution at the grave.

The funeral of William H. Slater, 63, who had been missing from his home since May 8 and whose body was found on May 28 at the foot of an unused cellar stairs in the Kingston Hotel on Crown street, was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, Fair street. Mr. Slater had gone to the bus terminal at the hotel from his home on Howland avenue to take a bus to Hurley where he was to make garden for a niece and evidently became confused and entered the doorway leading to the cellar instead of the rest room. The door was secured by a lock which had apparently been forced off and lay on the steps. The cellarway was unused and Mr. Slater's body was not discovered until days later when an employe of the hotel found the body at the foot of the steps. The services Friday were in charge of Albert H. Shultis of Bethany Chapel. Bearers were Frank Bunten, Judson Bunten, Irving Bunten, John Miers, John Rosa and Frank Ostrander. Interment was in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Memory of Smells Permanent

Sensations of smell and their mental effects are seldom lost by people, an authority declared after analyzing reports of over 250 distinguised people. One man said he gets homesick whenever he smells a book printed in England; another says childhood memories beset him when he smells desert plants, the desert region having been his childhood home; memories of early days return to two others upon smelling lilacs, those bushes having been prominent in the yards of their childhood homes; another who grew up on a farm well stocked with horses recalls early happenings upon encountering a horsy smell; another gets seasick upon smelling soap of the kind used on a sea voyage years before.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Crawfish Lures Bass

The crawfish, or crayfish as it is sometimes called, is one of the most important forms of bait for fresh-water fishermen, being particularly attractive to bass. The crawfish resembles a lobster in form, although, of course, very small. Like the lobster, it is a hearty eater and is not at all select in its diet. The crawfish are usually found hiding under rocks, particularly flat stones. Their ability to go backward or forward at equal speed makes them somewhat difficult to capture, but once captured and properly placed on a hook, they lure even the cagiest of bass to captivity.

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The hazards of matrimony in filmland, where husbands and wives often are separated by duty on the lots, are frequently cited, but Jean Harlow and Harold G. Rosson appear to have found the opposite extreme equally perilous.

Rosson was behind the camera photographing Jean in "The Red-Headed Woman," and he stayed there through other Harlow productions after their marriage.

When Jean was rehearsing, Hal was always on the sidelines, whether in his capacity as husband or as cameraman it was not apparent to the casual observer, although probably it was as both. During rehearsals for her current film, "One Hundred Per Cent Pure," Hal was there as usual. As cameraman, he'd have to be. As her husband, he apparently wanted to be.

But mid way in the filming, something happened. Rosson was relieved of the camera on this production, and Ray June, another good lens man, took it over. Hal went to the cameras on "Treasure Island." This was about a week before Jean announced she would seek a divorce.

Ironic Circumstances

Whether the studio disagreement was the forerunner of domestic trouble, or merely an aftershock of an earthquake at home, remained merely one of those Hollywood questions.

At any rate, the separation came under ironic circumstances, like previous important events in the star's life.

She was merely the decorative femininity in two-reel comedies before she stepped suddenly into dazzling stardom as the siren of "Hell's Angels." That debut stamped her as the vampire type, and it wasn't Jean's idea of the stardom she'd like. Her marriage to Paul Bern, the quiet, beloved little studio executive, brought with it more sympathetic roles.

Irony pursued her in Bern's death. She became a widow while she was yet a bride.

Incongruous Setting

And then, when she suddenly married Rosson—in a spectacular midnight airplane elopement to Yuma—she became a bride again after scarcely more than one year of widowhood.

And no more incongruous setting for an announcement of impending divorce could have been chosen than the wedding party of another film actress. Matron of honor at Carmelita Geraghty's marriage to Carey Wilson, Miss Harlow put aside her own bouquet to explain the absence of her husband from the festivities.

He wasn't there, she said, because he had left home and she was getting a divorce.

And then everybody mingled speculations on the marital wreck of last September's bride with felicitations to the bride of the day!

The Braves had to go 16 innings in the longest National League game of the season to beat Brooklyn 8-7. Maintaining their second place, the Giants beat the Phillies 4-3, and Chicago's Cubs downed the Reds 3-1.

Helen Jacobs Favored Over English Rival

Alice Marble of California Out of Tournament on Advice of Physician to Quit Tennis for One Year After Collapse.

Paris, June 2 (AP)—Whatever worries she might have over the Wightman Cup situation now that Alice Marble has been declared out of tournament tennis for the rest of the year, Helen Jacobs laid aside today while she sought to win the French hard court singles championship for the first time.

The Californian, United States champion and captain of the Wightman Cup team, ruled a slight favorite over Marget (Peggy) Scriven of England in their final round match for the title Miss Scriven won so unexpectedly last year.

The nature of the ailment that forced Miss Marble out of the game remained undisclosed. The young San Francisco girl collapsed on the court a week ago during the Franco-American team series. Dr. Robert Dax, her physician, informed the Associated Press Miss Marble's illness had become more severe and that he had advised her to return home and give up tennis for the year.

Having disbanded for a time, the P. N. A. baseball team is back in the field again. This past week the Polish Club closed ranks once more to go into the baseball wars under the direction of "Dolly" Tesslo, well known basketball manager, who foresees success for his boys on the diamond. They will play the Newburgh Rangers Sunday at Hasbrouck Park at 3:15 o'clock.

Cavalcade's Real Test Comes Today

"Little Chestnut" Carrying 126 Pounds Picked 2-1—35,000 Expected at American Derby.

Chicago, June 2 (AP)—When the hoofs cease flying and the winning numbers go up for the pay-off in the American Derby at Washington Park today, the sport of kings will know whether Cavalcade is a really great three-year-old champion.

The "little chestnut" from Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable proved he was a champion in the Kentucky Derby by soundly whipping his three foremost rivals—Discovery, Singing Wood and Mata Hari—at equal weights. Today, he must prove his greatness in the American Derby by spotting the same trio and seven others a big pull in the weights and more advantageous post positions.

Upwards of 35,000 people, a record throng, were expected to watch the duel over the gruelling route of a mile and a quarter on the fast track. Cavalcade was an early morning line favorite of 2 to 1 to lug his top weight of 126 pounds to victory with the help of a fast-breaking stablemate, Anarchy. Discovery, ranked the second favorite at 3 to 1 while Singing Wood was given an equal chance with Mata Hari at 6 to 1. Mata Hari carried the lightest weight, 116 pounds, because she was the only filly in the race. The other entries were Bien Fait, Sir Ten, Patchpocket, Technocracy, Prince Pompey, and Plight, the Texas Derby winner, all of them long shots.

With 11 starters, the race will be worth $23,810 net to the winner, and $2,730 to the runner-up.

Bill's Faith In Elly Rewarded

Ellsworth Vines, called the "world's best" in 1932 tennis but a bitter disappointment in 1933, has come back as a pro under the sponsorship of Bill Tilden (upper left) to win many dollars and convince the experts his 1933 failures were by no means indicative that he was a "one-season" meteorite of the tennis firmament.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

While there has been a good deal of national concern over the failure of the stock market to stage a spring rally, besides worry over the midwestern drouth, the "stagnation" of private credits and the pitching plight of the world champion New York Giants, the fact is that the boys have overlooked a notable factor in the counter-balancing upswing.

I refer to the dramatic rise of the St. Louis Browns under the leadership of plain-spoken, hard-bitten Rogers Hornsby. It is a pleasure to do so at this time because I left the camp of the Brownies, at West Palm Beach, last winter with the conviction that Hornsby was in a fair way to bring about a big improvement in any talent at his command.

I remarked at the time that there were at least two things Hornsby could be depended upon to develop in the Browns; first, any real or hidden talent for knocking base hits, and secondly, fighting spirit from start to finish of any ball game.

They're Coming Through

The one-time king of all the batsmen has not only succeeded in these two major objectives but, with limited material or cash with which to acquire any more, he has put together a hustling, effective lineup, the sensation so far of the American league race.

Although Hornsby has been obliged to try Frank Bejma at shortstop in place of the highly-touted Alan Strange, he has been more than repaid for his thoroughness in developing Harland Clift as lead-off man and third baseman, his coaching of Ray Pepper as clean-up batsman and his faith in Rollie Hemsley, the playboy backstop. Hemsley's rise to the top of the American league batting list is the answer to critics who insisted Hornsby was just taking on a headache when he signed the former Cincinnati and Chicago catcher.

From an over-sized assortment of pitching talent, Hornsby has had the good luck to get a number of consistent workers, with big Buck Newsom among those aiding the veterans Blaeholder, Hadley and Coffman.

A 'Disturbing' Factor

To sum up the situation, Hornsby has put together a real ball club within a remarkably short time around a nucleus of stars like Sam West, Bruce Campbell, Irving Burns and Oscar Melillo, the latter one of the best second sackers in either major league.

He has only been in the American league since the latter part of the 1933 season. As a matter of fact it was with some misgivings in official league quarters that the former National league slugger assumed the leadership of the Browns. These fears have been justified only insofar as Hornsby's club has unexpectedly become a disturbing influence to other pennant rivals.

It is altogether possible, owing to the weird train of events in the American league race, that the Browns not only will finish in the first division but have something to say about the disposition of the 1934 pennant.

Fairness And Frankness

By now it should be clear, at any rate, that Hornsby possesses real managerial ability, whatever critics may have to say about his habits of being altogether blunt and outspoken.

Thin-skinned or over-sensitive players or persons who come in contact with Hornsby are apt to experience a few jolts in the region of pride or their feelings. The rajah's combination of fairness and frankness, however, seems to me to be the chief factor contributing to his success in handling most ballplayers. They know just what he means and where he stands.

A hard loser, Hornsby is at all times a realist, deluding neither himself nor the men under him as to the facts of baseball. His record is studded with disputes, growing out of the habit of not mincing his words and his disdain for wily subterfuges, but no one challenges his knowledge of baseball and ability to impart it.

The Cardinals and Deans Bury Hatchet

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP)—All's well again with the Deans—Dizzy and Paul—and the management of the St. Louis Cardinals, apparently.

Manager Frank Frisch, Cardinals manager, wrote finish to a one-day "strike" of Dizzy, involving brother Paul, by announcing the former will do the hurling in one of this afternoon's games with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dizzy gave a "sore arm" as his specific reason for refusing to don a Cardinals uniform yesterday, but he intimated that he would remain in civies indefinitely unless Paul, spending his first year in the majors, was granted an increase to his present $3,000 salary. Big brother Dizzy apparently was satisfied with his own annual $7,500 stipend.

Legion Juniors To Practice on Monday

Athletic Officer Ed Coughlin of Kingston Post has issued a call for all boys wishing to play on the American Legion Junior Baseball League to be at the Kingston Fair Grounds Monday at 6:30 o'clock. The rule on ages states that no boy who will be 17 before June 30 shall compete in the league and the competition makes it useless for a boy under 15 years of age to try out for the league. The Legion furnishes all equipment except gloves. Those attending Monday's practice are requested to bring their gloves.

Cragan Will Umpire All Hercules Contests

George Cragan, one of the best known umpires in this vicinity, has been procured by the Hercules team to officiate at all of its games in Port Ewen for the remainder of the season. This announcement about Cragan was made today by Manager George Walker, of the Powdermen, whose club will play a return engagement with Fred Davi's Glasco All Stars, who they defeated by one run earlier in the year. Davi has strengthened his lineup since then and hopes to even the score. Manello. Best are ready to pitch for the Hercules. Ryder will catch.

American Fleet Occupied Toronto for Eleven Days

The history of Toronto dates from 1749 when Fort Rouille, commonly known as Fort Toronto, was established as an Indian trading post and stockade by order of King Louis XV of France. Following the victory of the British troops over the French at Quebec in 1759, as a result of which Canada was ceded to Britain, a fur-trading post was established in 1770 on the site of Fort Rouille. Thirty-three years later General Simcoe, of the British forces in Canada, who established the first parliament in upper Canada at Niagara-on-the-Lake, landed at Toronto, christened the place York, and selected it as the location of the new capital of the Province of Upper Canada, now Ontario.

The war of 1812-14 prevented the desired progress being made by the provincial capital. At one time an American fleet of ten armed vessels, carrying fifty guns, landed and occupied York for eleven days. By 1815 the population of York was 2,500; in 1834, when the name was changed to Toronto, the population was 8,000. The city now has more than 630,000.

The Calendar

In the days of the ancient Greeks it was customary to have the first day of every month announced in one of two ways. One way was through the cries of heralds, and the other was by means of placards which were posted on the walls of the city. These placards were called "kalends" or "kalendae," from the Greek word meaning "I call or proclaim." The Greeks also kept a book of accounts referring to the day of the year, and this was known as a "calendarium," and from it we have derived our own word, calendar. In the excavations of Pompeii there was found a great block of marble which had been used as a calendar. This book was four-sided, and on each side there was a record of three months of the year, each side headed with the proper sign of the zodiac, and containing information concerning agriculture and religious matters for the season.

How Big Is London

What is the area of London? No, don't trouble to answer! Whatever reply you make, nobody can say you are right, for no one knows the exact size of London. The County of London, which includes the London boroughs, has an area of 115.80 square miles. The London county council, however, is effective over an area of 116.95 square miles. The London postal district covers 232 square miles. The Metropolitan police are even more ambitious, for they keep an eye on nearly 8,000,000 people over an area of almost 700 square miles. The Metropolitan water board supplies the housewives from Hadam, in Herts, to Sevenoaks, in Kent—a total acreage of 367,361. The electricity supply of London is distributed over an area of 1,841 square miles. The City of London has an area of only one square mile—known as "the most valuable square mile in the world." The Tower of London is not in London! It stands in Stepney.

BETTER HATCHING METHODS IN SIGHT

Cornell Professor Predicts Marked Improvement.

By Prof. A. L. Romanoff, Poultry Department, Cornell University. WNU Service.

More simple, more economical and surer methods of hatching eggs in the future are predicted. This prophecy is based on the present trend of scientific research. Today, because of lack of scientific knowledge about the nature of birds' eggs, they are incubated wastefully. Infertile eggs, and eggs of poor hatching quality, are set into the incubator and destroyed. In the same incubator attempts are made to hatch eggs of various species of birds, such as turkey, chicken, and duck, and failure to hatch them efficiently results.

But in the future we shall be able to produce eggs of better hatchability. Breeding stock will lay fewer infertile eggs, and fewer eggs with defective outside or inside qualities. The quality of hatchable eggs will be much improved by selective breeding, proper feeding and housing of birds, and by proper selection and care of hatchable eggs.

More knowledge will be gained about eggs of various species of birds, their handling at different stages of development, and the natural requirements of eggs for incubation.

Scientifically designed incubators, one type for chicken eggs, one for duck eggs, and special types for others will be developed. These incubators will be more simple and more economical to operate, and they will insure a good, healthy hatch.

The artificial incubation of tomorrow will result from research activities today. The view of a brighter, better future should bring the whole hatching industry nearer and nearer to perfection.

Keep the Pullets Busy, Regarded as Good Advice

Just as a school teacher has the most trouble with her pupils in the first week of the school term, so does the poultryman have the most trouble with his pullets the first week they are confined from summer range, states a commercial poultryman in Pathfinder Magazine. During the first week in the laying house many pullets learn the vices that are responsible for mortality during the winter. Feather picking, egg eating, laying on the floor and other bad habits are started soon after birds are housed.

It is very important that pullets be kept busy when they are first confined. Supply liberal quantities of green feed. Keep laying mash before them in open hoppers. Make them scratch and work as much as possible. Provide enough nests so that there will be no crowding. Be sure the birds are free from lice and the house free from mites.

Cure for Sealy Leg

Scaly leg can be overcome by the use of any disinfectant used on the feet and legs of the birds, says a poultryman in the Montreal Herald. Sulphur-and-lard ointment rubbed on the legs and rubbed well in will gradually effect a cure. A coal oil solution will rid the birds of scaly legs, but the birds' legs should not be more than dipped in the coal oil. Do not leave it for any length of time as the coal oil treatment is drastic. The sulphur-and-lard salve should be rubbed on the legs about once every four or five days until the legs are clean. Do not attempt to remove the scales; let nature effect the removal.

Coloration of Egg Shells

The coloration of shells from purebred flocks shows a deviation from breed and should not be used for hatching especially if the baby chicks are to be sold as purebreds, according to an authority at North Carolina State college. Unless the birds are trapnested it will be difficult to identify the birds producing off-color eggs and, where the poultryman is doing his own breeding, it would be well to discard the present male birds and replace them with birds from flocks that have not shown this trouble.

Poultry Hints

Hens must be healthy and free from parasites of al kinds.

Five ducks is considered the maximum for one drake and four would be better.

• • •

At least eight feet of space at the feeder should be provided for every 100 chicks.

• • •

Jersey giants, Langshans, Cochins and Brahmas make the largest capons. These breeds mature slowly.

• • •

Placing all feed and water containers for chicks on low platforms covered with hard wire cloth will prevent the chicks from picking up contaminated feed and water.

• • •

Chicks should be fed at a reasonably early age, as soon as they are well dried and become active. If purchased they usually are ready to be fed upon arrival at the farm.

Trapping Weasels

Weasels are not difficult to trap. They have regular territories which they cover. Their trails usually lead through low swampy territory, and they have a habit of following old rail fences, and of going under old bridges or through dense woods.

President Studies Reports From Capital

Worcester, Mass., June 2 (AP)—In his railroad yard home at Worcester, President Roosevelt looked over reports from the Capital today and prepared a talk for the Private School of Groton to be delivered tonight.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, the president relaxed in complete comfort last night in this odd White House headquarters. It is perhaps the first time in history that the president has kept station for two days in a railroad yard.

So far as public affairs are concerned the president is keeping in constant touch with Washington by a specially attached telephone on his car but there is no indication that he is concerned over conditions at the Capital.

After dispatching his message on the war debts, he gave himself over last night and today to complete freedom. He was accompanied back here by his six feet, four inches youngest son, John, with a diploma from Groton. The family turned back today for the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Groton.

Late tomorrow night after the school exercises the president and his family reboard this temporary White House in the railroad yards and travel to the home at Hyde Park for Sunday. He will leave late Sunday night to return to Washington to aid in the closing drive of congress.

The Word "Gringo"

The Spanish word "gringo" originated among the Mexicans, but it has spread to all Latin American countries as a contemptuous term for citizens of the United States, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. When the American army invaded Mexico in 1846 a favorite song in the camps of the American troops was Burns' "Green Grow the Rushes, O." The Mexicans heard it sung so repeatedly that they finally began to mimic the Americans by calling them by the first two words, which they pronounced "green go," spelled in Spanish "gringo."

"Brand-New"

Before the streets of cities and towns were illuminated with lamps or electricity, it was customary for people to light their way at night by carrying burning torches, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. In England these torches were termed "brands," from which is derived our modern word "firebrand." To the people of those times the brand represented the acme of that which was bright or shiny. Thus, "brand-new" became, and has remained, a synonym for anything lustrous and bright with newness.

Old Quebec

The old French city, the Quebec of the Seventeenth century and the ancient capital of Canada, and modern Quebec, the provincial capital, are two distinct and yet united cities. They form a great center of art, sacred and secular history, architecture and religion. Not far from the old city is the village of St. Anne de Beaupre. The shrine of St. Anne has been a point of pious pilgrimage ever since the first establishment of Canada.

Tom Goodman, who had the contract to construct the first nine holes, has now completed his construction work and as manager of the club for the next five years is turning his attention to maintenance of the course. Those who have played the course during the past couple of days claim that the playing conditions have been vastly improved since the maintenance work has been commenced.

160 Children Were Immunized at Clinics

The State Commissioner of Health requested at the beginning of the year that an extra effort be made during the spring months to immunize as many children against diphtheria as possible and especially those under the age of five years, because it is among these children that diphtheria takes its greatest toll. In compliance with this request the Health Department of Kingston has held several extra clinics in different parts of the city, making it possible and easy for parents to bring their children in for immunization. As a result of these extra clinics 160 children received toxoid and are protected against diphtheria.

It was also considered advisable at the time to give the parents the opportunity of having their children vaccinated if they desired. As a result of this, 98 children were vaccinated and thus protected against smallpox.

The diphtheria prevention clinics will continue throughout the year at the City Hall every Monday from 3 to 4 p. m.

Parents are urged to have their children immunized during the summer months either by their own physician or at the clinic. No child should reach the age of five years without being protected against diphtheria and small pox. Even though there has been no diphtheria in Kingston in the last year and a half, there are constantly among us perfectly healthy individuals who carry virulent diphtheria germs in their throat and who may in the act of sneezing, coughing or talking transmit these germs to others. Children are especially liable to contract the disease in this way. Therefore fathers and mothers, let nothing stand in the way of having your children protected against diphtheria at once. Prevention is the very core of the work of any health department. When disease can be prevented lives are saved. Smallpox and diphtheria are two diseases which can be prevented. Make sure that your children have the benefit of this protection.

Famous Golden Spike

At the junction of the two roads that formed the first transcontinental railway, a golden spike was presented by California and was driven into a specially prepared tie by officials of the two roads with silver sledges. This ceremony took place May 10, 1869, at Promontory Point, Utah, and immediately after the ceremony the golden spike was withdrawn and an iron one substituted. It is in the museum of Leland Stanford university. Leland Stanford was one of the railroad officials who wielded the silver sledges.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "20 Million Sweethearts." Just when it seemed that all the ideas and arrangements for more talkie musicals had run low and died a harmless death, Warner Brothers come bustling through with a bigger and better song and dance extravaganza, raising Dick Powell to stardom en route. Surrounded by a giant cast, beautiful women and talented radio stars, this latest eye filler must be classed as another winner in the musical line of films. In the show, Mr. Powell plays the role of a young gentleman who is discovered by a radio promoter. His voice, it seems, has the peculiar ability of throwing listening maidens into an ecstacy of heavenly delight. When he sings, millions of girls gather before their radios and look moonstruck. Naturally, a man with a voice like this is bound to go far in a commercial way. In order to keep his public, his manager must keep Mr. Powell unmarried or the thrill is gone. The tragedy lies in the fact that Mr. Powell is in love. This is where the plot thickens, but not enough to cloud up the gentle simplicity of the story. Supporting the star are the Mills Brothers, Ted Fiorito and his band, the three Radio Rogues, Pat O'Brien and Ginger Rogers. Some excellent comedy has been worked into the show, and the way Mr. Powell first hits the radio waves is a riot. Good entertainment.

Orpheum: "Picture Brides" and "Terror Trail." Released last year, the opening feature is filmed in a tropical setting, and elaborates on the fate of four scarlet sisters who become brides to some tropical diamond mining men. Alan Hale, Regis Toomey and Dorothy Mackaill are in the cast. "Terror Trail" is a Tom Mix western mixer, filled with gun play, action and belated justice. Mr. Mix comes through with unexcelled horsemanship during the performance. Naomi Judge and Raymond Hatton are in the cast.

and "Trail Drive." What happens in the life of a registered nurse is registered on the screen, and it seems to be a pretty lively existence. Bebe Daniels, Lyle Talbot and John Halliday are featured amid the white of hospital corridors, ambulances and general excitement. "Trail Drive" is one of the best western melodramas to hit the screen. It has punch, action, good photography, good acting and a novel plot. Ken Maynard, in the starring role, proves a brave and likable hero, and action never slackens during the run of the film.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "I Believed in You." Deception and disillusionment run hand in hand in this talkie, the story of a young girl who believed and helped a couple of men she thought were Greenwich Village artists only to discover them fakers and cads. Incidently, this film serves to introduce the lovely and talented Rosemary Ames to the screen. Others in the cast are John Boles, Victor Jory, Leslie Fenton and George Meeker.

Broadway: "Hollywood Party." They gathered together most of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy stars for this round of giggles, mixed up the plot and the billings so that even the most tempermental artist wouldn't yell he was being gypped, and out of it all came the "Hollywood Party," one of the gayest and silliest pictures on record. It's really a riot, this meaningless talkie that simply gives its cast of comedians a chance to work out their destiny unhindered. Laurel and Hardy and Lupe Velez stage a rib tickling bit, James Durante does a Tarzan that will make your sides ache, Ted Healy slaps his stooges in an unforgettable manner, and Jack Pearl, Polly Moran, Charles Butterworth, and even little Mickey Mouse come through with some swell acting. This show is well worth seeing, a plotless, well directed, cleverly staged comedy feature with all the necessary ingredients for an enjoyable bit of entertainment.

THERE WAS AN ODOR BUT IT WAS NOT A SWEET ONE.

This morning a resident of West O'Reilly street called up police headquarters and complained of an odor near the entrance to the Twaalfskill Golf Club grounds. He said that he thought it might be from a dead person as the odor was "too strong" to be that from a dead animal. Officer Harnen, Health Officer Sanford and Sanitary Inspector John Reis made a hurried trip to the scene of the odor where their nostrils were greeted with an odor far from sweet. It did not eminate from a dead person, however, but from a bag filled with dead sections from a calf's body, which had been thrown there by someone after butchering the calf elsewhere. The board of public works will bury the bag and contents.

"Liverwing"

In preparing a fowl for roasting for the tidbit known many years ago as "liverwing," the heart and liver were removed. The heart was secured tucked under the left wing and the liver under the right wing. In cooking, the flavor of the liver was imparted to the right wing. This was then considered a delicacy, worthy of offering to an honored guest.

Brussels Sprouts

It is claimed that Brussels sprouts have been grown from time immemorial around Brussels in Belgium, but they were not described by botanists until 1623, when Bauhin names them and tells how some plants had as many as 50 heads. They were first mentioned in America in 1806 by McMahon.

Made a Poor Guess

Only a quarter of a century ago, the greatest economic geologist America has ever produced announced in the Encyclopedia Britannica that California "had indications of petroleum but could never become a commercial producer."
